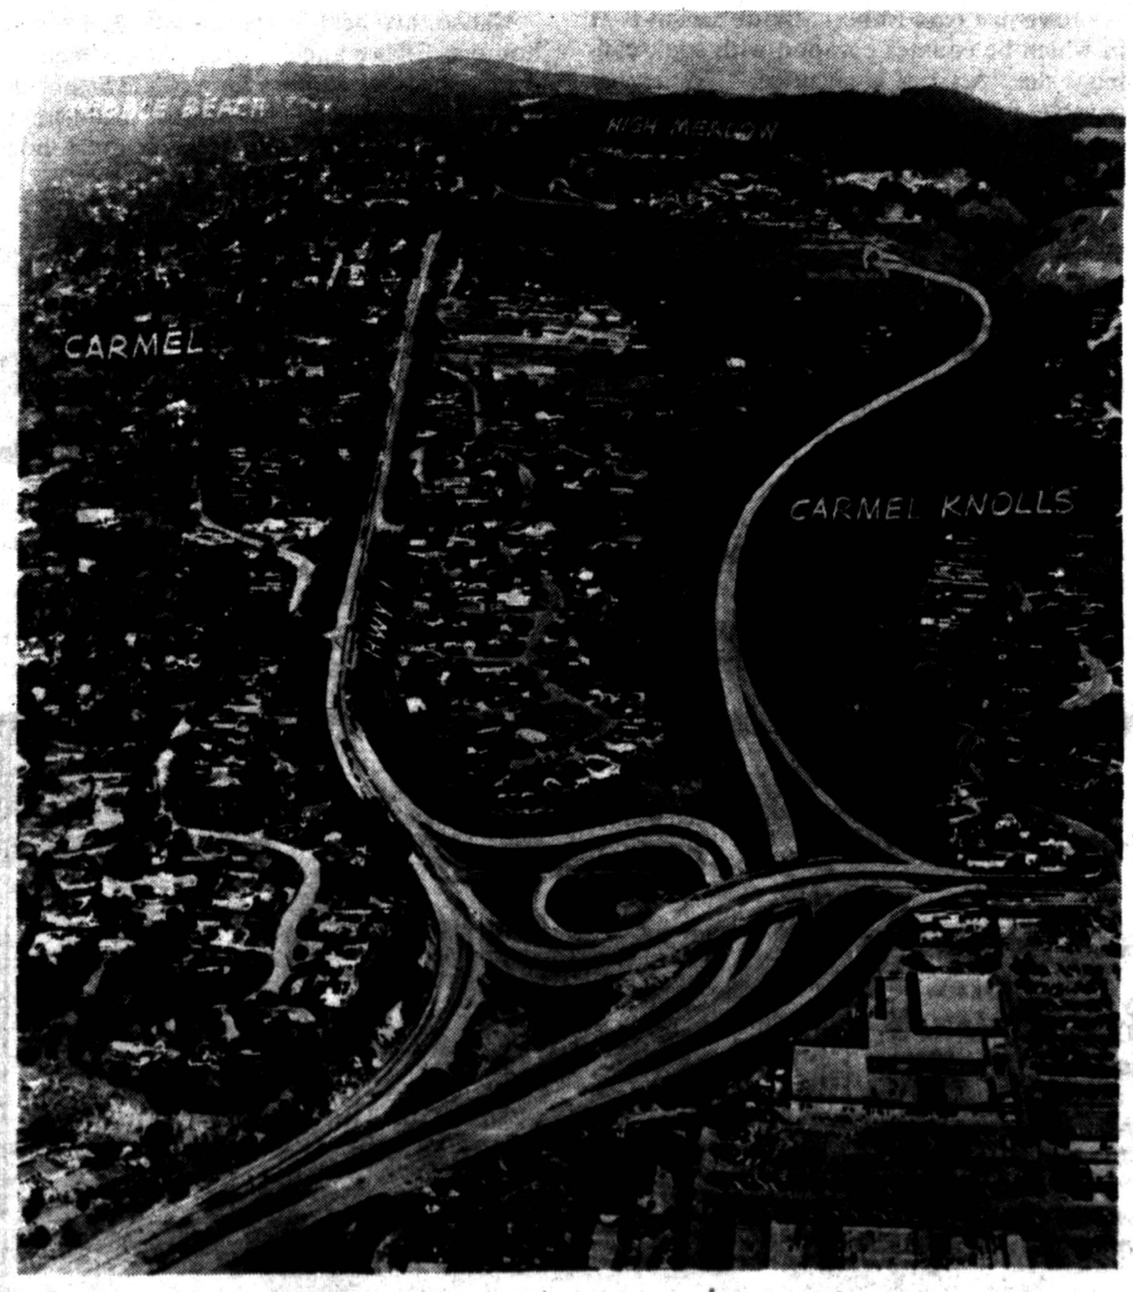
The Carmel Pine Cone

and Carmel Valley Outlook

OUR 75TH YEAR, NO. 47 — November 23, 1989

THIS PHOTO shows Caltrans' design for the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway project, with its complicated interchange at Carmel Valley Road and four-lane freeway through Hatton Canyon.



THE SPLIT-route alternative, or loop, would see only two lanes traversing Hatton Canyon, and southbound traffic moving along the existing Highway 1.

Caltrans, foes to square off at city-sponsored forum

By DAVID LELAND

ONCE AGAIN Caltrans and opponents of the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway have agreed to disagree.

The arena for the latest conflict concerning the proposed $27 million freeway is something as seemingly benign as a city-sponsored forum to let both sides air their views, which is scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 30 at Sunset Center.

"They're going to use it as a public relations platform," charged Carmel architect Roger Larson, who will make a presentation at the forum.

Not so, countered Caltrans District Director Tom Pollock.

"It was our understanding that the council wanted it," Pollock said. "We'd be glad not to do it."

The bottom line, as has been the case between the two sides for a number of years, centers on opposing designs.

Caltrans vehemently endorses a plan which, in its simplest form, proposes four lanes going through Hatton Canyon, a complicated interchange at Carmel Valley Road, an elevated freeway over Rio Road and a new bridge at the Carmel River.

Larson, and Monterey architect Wallace Holm, who will also make a presentation at the forum, support a split-route alternative.

A split route would see only two lanes in Hatton Canyon for northbound traffic, four lanes southbound traffic on the existing Highway 1 and a left-hand turn lane at Rio Road.

Holm and Larson disagree whether there should be a tunnel at Carmel Hill, but agree on the overall plan.

"The split route fits the local traffic problems better than the Hatton Canyon Freeway project that is being designed for through traffic," said Larson, adding that the cost for the split route would be about the same as Caltrans' plan.

Meanwhile, Caltrans has made its comments for the final environmental impact statement, which is slated for release in late December or early January — the state transportaion agency put the split route in a section for routes that were considered and rejected.

"We feel that it wouldn't do the job," Pollock said.

He cited built-in problems such as a still-existing traffic light at Ocean Avenue, which would stop traffic and clog the freeway; the canyon still experiencing large fills because the split route only reduces fills by 18 percent; and at least two homes being removed in the Carmel Knolls area.

"We feel (that) we have given it considerable attention; I think we understand it better than the proponents," Pollock said.

CUT TO city hall, where Mayor Jean Grace is trying to put the meeting in the proper perspective — it's nothing to get excited about.

"The public deserves to hear the reasons why Caltrans isn't going to change its mind," she said. "The public needs to hear Caltrans' reasons for rejecting a split route."

Grace indicated that, with the FEIS having only a 30-day public comment period, it is important that people be as informed as they can.

For its part, Carmel is urging Caltrans to consider a route that would do as little damage to Hatton Canyon as possible.

"I cannot stress enough the need for Caltrans to put aside the 'preferred alternative' and seek common ground with the citizenry of the greater Carmel area," she wrote in a July letter to Pollock. "To continue to push ahead will most possibly produce only one alternative, litigation."

At its July 11 meeting the Carmel City Council unanimously requested Caltrans to initiate an analysis of the split route.

'We feel (that) we have given it considerable attention; I think we understand it better than the proponents.'
— Tom Pollock
— Caltrans

As can be expected, supporters of the split route can find as many holes in Caltrans' plan as Caltrans finds in the split route.

For example, the complicated "single-point diamond" interchange at Carmel Valley Road simply would not work, Larson said.

The problem, he added, is that there is a county-owned signal 500 feet away at Carmel Rancho Boulevard, which will push traffic back onto the freeway as cars attempt to exit at Carmel Valley Road.

Supporters of the split route are readying plans to back their concept.

The only problem is that a government agency cannot look at ideas from the private sector unless the plans are approved by a licensed traffic engineer, Larson said.

"I disagree that it can't be worked out," said Holm, adding that he has had two offers from licensed engineers to perform the work. "There are no major problems."

'The public deserves to hear the reasons why Caltrans isn't going to change its mind. The public needs to hear Caltrans' reasons for rejecting a split route.'
— Jean Grace

For example, increased lanes could be added to the existing Highway 1 so traffic would not be backed up at Ocean Avenue.

THROUGHOUT THE latest brouhaha, the Hatton Canyon Coalition has taken a wait-and-see approach.

While it was thought that, initially, the citizens' group opposing the current design would boycott the forum, it appears that some members will attend.

"I think it would be a mistake not to go," said Skip Lloyd, Hatton Canyon Freeway Coalition chairman, adding that the group does not support any particular design at this time. "But I do feel it will be a sales job by Caltrans on why the split route won't work."

The important thing, Lloyd said, is for residents of the area to have a say in what type of freeway will eventually be built.

GUEST EDITORIAL

By Albert Eisner

Losing touch?

HAS 5th District Supervisor Karen Strasser Kauffman lost touch with her constituency?

Based on the results of the voting for Measure B (the controversial measure that raises the sales tax one-half percent in Monterey County), and her remarks after the election, one can only draw the conclusion that she is clearly out of step with the people she represents in Carmel, Carmel Valley and Pebble Beach.

As most everyone knows by now, the sales tax squeaked through by a scant 11 votes out of 42,500 votes cast.

I voted against the measure. I was a little suspicious because the chamber of commerce put its weight behind the sales tax increase. Why would the chamber support an increase in taxes? Then, I didn't think it was proper for local taxpayers to pay $123.5 million for improvements to US Highway 101 (the Prunedale bypass). It seemed logical to me that Washington should pay for a federal highway. Also, I was ambivalent about paying $90 million for a new hospital at Natividad that I was unlikely to use — even though there was a need for improvements to the county hospital.

Finally, I was less than ecstatic about the $25 million that would be raised to widen Carmel Valley Road all the way out to Robinson Canyon Road at Mid-Valley...it seems like a gift to eager developers who might have been stymied because of the excessive traffic on the two-lane portion of Carmel Valley Road.

Since everyone I know voted against it, my curiousity got my journalistic juices flowing again. I phoned the county Elections Department and requested a copy of the precinct-by-precinct vote. What it showed was that the Carmel area and the Monterey Peninsula were snookered. Despite voting against by a 55-45 percent margin, Carmel and peninsula residents will be saddled with a half-cent sales tax increase for the next 20 years.

The people in Salinas and North County were the big winners, and we are the saps who will have to foot the bill, folks!

Here's the way to vote went on the peninsula:

	Yes	No
Carmel	667	716
Carmel Valley	1,504	1,627
Del Rey Oaks	190	216
Marina	947	1,132
Monterey	1,780	2,076
Pacific Grove	1,876	2,074
Pebble Beach	632	1,125
TOTAL	8.684	10,524

The above figures show clearly that not one single Monterey Peninsula Community was in favor of a sales tax increase. Yet, it will be shoved down our throats. Why? Because the folks in Salinas and North County voted for it. Here's their vote:

	Yes	No
Salinas	5,639	4,164
Castroville	245	174
Oak Hills	337	187
Prunedale	605	335
Toro Park	926	572
TOTAL	7,752 (59 percent)	5,432 (41 percent)

The poor folks in South County were blown out of the water altogether. Their supervisor, Dusan Petrovic, was ridiculed for not wanting to serve on the panel that will figure out how to levy the tax, because there was nothing in the measure for his constituency. Here's the way the South County voted:

	Yes	No
Gonzales	245	252
Greenfield	299	360
King City	180	546
TOTAL	724 (38 percent)	1,158 (62 percent)

Now, that's truly "taxation without representation." But, we are not faring much better over here, despite the wishful thinking expressed by Supervisor Strasser Kauffman in the Carmel Pine Cone last week: She said (hoping nobody would county the votes, maybe): "Everyone in the county is very pleased."

Hooey! The 21,214 people who voted against it aren't pleased. The residents of the Monterey Peninsula aren't pleased. The Monterey Peninsula Taxpayers Association isn't pleased. The auto dealers are not pleased, because the new tax will slap a $50 surcharge on every $20,000 car they sell, which will make them less competitive. ("Shop in Gilroy...Drive a Little...Save a Lot" the TV commercial says.) Now car buyers can save even more by shopping elsewhere.

On the other hand the chamber of commerce is pleased. The folks in Salinas and North County are pleased. And Supervisors Strasser Kauffman, Sam Karas, and Barbara Shipnuck are pleased.

I searched for reasons why our supervisor was such an ardent supporter of an increase in the sales tax. Was she duped? Did she think she was "anointed" and didn't have to be responsive to the people who voted for her? Why would she stump around the district asking people to vote for a tax increase that would primarily benefit the Salinas area, when she represents Carmel, Carmel Valley and Pebble Beach?

The only plausible answer I could come up with was that she was willing to saddle her voters with an extra tax to benefit Salinas and North County because she made a political deal and was able to get the money to widen Carmel Valley Road.

The traffic load on the two-lane portion of Carmel Valley Road is at Level "F," the worst possible rating. Thus, further development would be stalled in Carmel Valley. Has Strasser Kauffman become the tool of the developers?

Then, of course, there is her stubborn support for the monstrous Hatton Canyon Freeway. She clings to the forlorn hope that the "overwhelming majority" of the people in this area want the freeway. She still makes this claim despite strong opposition from the City of Carmel; the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association; the Sierra Club; Carmel Residents Association; League of Women Voters; and others. Just who ARE the people who want that freeway?

Finally, all the pieces came together. The beleagured freeway project has many problems. One of them is the assertion by Caltrans in the draft EIR that traffic on Carmel Valley Road will get worse if the freeway is built. This could stop her cherished freeway.

Is it possible that Strasser Kauffman sold us out so that she could get the freeway she wants so badly? Why, oh why, does she remain the single biggest booster of the freeway despite overwhelming opposition? Does she have a secret agenda?

The voters and residents of this area demand and deserve answers to these questions. It's time she answered them so that the voters can decide next time she comes up for reelection whether they wish to continue to reelect someone who is so clearly out of step with her constituency.

It's OK for politicians to say one thing and do another, as long as they are willing to pay the price for their arrogance.

Peaceful place

Dear Editor:

I have a watercolor painting by Margaret Herrick of the tree at the foot of Ocean Drive, dated 1913. This 76-year-old picture has been out of its frame for nine years.

Suddenly, on Nov. 16, I had the inspiration to go out and get a frame for it. I remember visiting the Cottage of the Blue Door in Carmel back in the mid-1950s, after Salvation Army Officer, Major Ruth McCann, acquired it from the Herrick family. As I look at this watercolor scene I imagine the artist painting it back in 1913 and wonder what Carmel looked like then. Probably a cottage here and there. No stores or hotels. What travel agent extolled its wonders?

It was just a peaceful place still unaffected by humanity.

Local pride

Dear Editor:

Regarding the Carmel Planning Commission meeting of November 8th, I'm writing to clarify my comments regarding the lot-line reconfiguration for the property located at San Carlos and 10th Avenue.

I spoke as member of the historical survey team, but not as a spokesperson for Carmel Heritage.

Research has shown that the Queen Anne wooden house in question is one of the earliest houses in Carmel and is the only one of its style in the city. The 1938 date mentioned by the city was not for its construction but rather to enclose a porch.

Historical surveys in other parts of California and the nation during the past 20 or more years have subsequently added greatly to local pride. And certainly, Carmel has many structures and sites to revere.

Heart and soul

Dear Editor:

I have just read Robert Sinotte's essay 9-21 in which he equates emotion with soul, calling it the "pearl of great price." To me that parable from Matthew means nothing less than discovering that soul is the individual's true identity and the kingdom within its true home.

From this expanded awareness it sees that it inhabits a human body, using the mental and emotional bodies to gather experience while on this plane of existence. Emotions and feelings come from the heart center, but the words "heart" and "soul" were never meant to be used interchangeably.

Soul must be in charge of the emotions or one is in deep trouble, and unfortunately, the average person IS controlled by his emotions. All actions based on anger, impatience, mistrust, envy, hatred, greed, fear, or the "do-it-my-way syndrome" are emotional reactions. You only have to watch the evening news to observe the results, and if you don't know how to detach yourself from the emotional bombardment you'd better not even watch it.

Out of the heart also come the emotions of joy, beauty, love and compassion, but soul is far above either positive or negative emotions, being a neutral observer of the theater of life. Seeing from the soul point-of-view allows a much truer understanding of life to emerge, undistorted by mental and emotional hangups. Soul is aware that the animal body it inhabits shares the same life force as do all plants and animals, and that body is really a conglomeration of cells which work together like an extraordinary machine.

The imaginative ability of soul is the God spark which sets the human being apart from other life forms that operate instinctively; it continually uses its creative power whether or not the "God-image" is realized. A soul must wait for a physical vehicle to be prepared and a mother is completely responsible for all growth and movement within her own body.

There is a law which states that two souls cannot occupy the same space and that is one of the reasons soul waits till birth to enter the body. At times it doesn't enter and we call it a stillbirth. Bodies are expendable but no soul has ever been killed by abortion.

I see the whole abortion issue as a difference in religious beliefs, and in America we have the right to differ but not to impose our beliefs on others. Neither does any government agency have the right to interfere in a woman's freedom of religious practice.

Knowledge of CPR could save lives

MORE THAN 70 percent of all CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) rescues occur in the home on an individual known by the rescuer.

Statistics show that more than 650,000 people in the United States died from heart attacks in 1986 and that heart disease is the leading cause of death in Monterey County.

On the other hand CPR saves more than 250 lives a day; the more people that know CPR, the more lives that can be saved.

Classes are held at the Carmel Red Cross house at Eighth and Dolores. Classes include demonstrations and teaching of the Heimlich maneuver. Cost is $15 for the eight-hour class. A certificate will be presented upon completion.

Despite protests, PB incorporation proceeding

By DAVID LELAND

AS IF battle lines in Pebble Beach weren't already drawn tight enough over the idea of incorporation, last week's meeting of the Pebble Beach Community Services District board of directors enflamed tempers even further.

'We don't want any of the environmental issues to be mitigated out of the EIR. We hope these will not be cut away by legal maneuvers.'

— John Tomrey
— CAI chairman

The conflict centered on the position taken by Monterey Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) that an environmental impact report be required in order to make a decision on incorporation.

Thus far directors have taken either a pro-incorporation or neutral stance on the matter, which is in direct opposition to the aims of Committee Against Incorporation (CAI).

Despite vocal complaints and a formal letter written by those against incorporation, the PBCSD last Friday moved forward with the incorporation process.

And while John Tomrey, CAI chairman, reminded the board that residents had clearly spoken in the Nov. 7 election by ousting two of the current directors and replacing them with two candidates with anti-incorporation stances, Dick Andrews, PBCSD general mangaer, told The Pine Cone that those changes were perhaps insignificant.

Andrews said that the two outgoing directors had pro and neutral stances on incorporation, while the two incoming directors have neutral and anti-incorporation views, not enough to sway the majority one way or the other.

New directors are David Hendrick (who is against incorporation), and Jancie O'Brien (neutral) — outgoing are Norman Hansen (neutral), and Donald Durant (pro).

New directors take over their responsibilities on Nov. 30.

In response to LAFCO, the PBCSD attempted to diffuse the proposed EIR by either reducing its content or settling the matter without preparation entirely.

Brian Finegan, a Salinas attorney representing the PBCSD, said that California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) guidelines forbid the inclusion of projects in an EIR which are merely speculative.

"LAFCO took for granted that every issue in the feasibility study was important," said Finegan, referring to a study released last summer touting possible benefits of incorporation.

Finegan, who is being joined in counseling the PBCSD by the San Francisco law firm of Pillsbury, Madison and Sutro, cited the idea of removal of the gates as an example of the feasibility study's ambiguity.

"It's not clear at all that that would happen," he said. "The law is abundantly clear that an EIR can't engage in speculation about possible environmental consequences."

He also said that whether or not Monterey County loses tax revenue if Pebble Beach were incorporated is not germane to the EIR.

"While it is certainly an issue of great consequence to the county, it is simply not an environmental issue," Finegan said.

Directors adopted a resolution asking LAFCO to exclude the feasibility study because it was "overly broad" and evaluated several capital improvement projects that were not part of the incorporation application.

The "study and projects have no binding effect on later activities," the resolution reads, "The proposed town is not committed to any...projects."

OPPONENTS TO incorporation bristled at the idea of limiting the scope of the EIR or avoiding it altogether.

"Why do you want to limit the query of the EIR?" said Hank Noon. "We'd like to have as much information as we can."

David Sprenger, PBCSD chairman, said, however, that "We're looking for the law; we're not trying to hide anything."

Finegan than cited the state Supreme Court, saying, "EIRs should not discuss gleams in a planner's eye."

Members of the CAI were hardly mollified by the directors or their counsel.

"We don't want any of the environmental issues to be mitigated out of the EIR," said Tomrey. "We are anxious; we hope these will not be cut away by legal maneuvers."

Prior to the meeting, the CAI had submitted a letter containing 10 points it believed were salient to the EIR.

These included:

• The idea that low-income housing would proliferate in the forest under incorporation.

• There is a good chance that the gates could be removed, despite assurances to the contrary from the PBCSD.

The EIR should conduct its own legal investigation as to whether public access would increase.

• The EIR should explore traffic hazards such as circulation, noise and air quality.

• The idea that it is not proper to keep the $2.5 million garnerd from hostelry tax each year within the foreset. Those funds are needed in the county.

• The EIR should explore whether the Montery-Salinas Transit District would begin routing service through the forest.

• The possibility of a 120-day gap if incorporation were to occur. During that time, county land-use regulations would not be in place and developers could build outside of current strict standards.

'The law is abundantly clear that an EIR can't engage in speculation about possible environmental consequences.'

— Brian Finegan

• If a wildland fire were to occur shortly after incorporation, the new fire district may not be equipped to handle it.

• Capital impovements such as a fire station, city hall and police station could lead to increased urbanization in the forest.

• Increased public access would increase foot traffic in the sensitive coastal areas. This could cause damage to the cliffs, which should be explored in the EIR.

• Existing contracts between Pebble Beach and the county involving security and environmental functions could be negated — which could cause problems.

"The EIR process in the hands of wise decision-makers is its only protection against spinning off into being just another troubled city on an already city-crowded peninsula," Tomrey said.

Hekhuis, Russell ready for challenge of water board

By NANCY HILLS

WITH SUNNY skies above and a powerful vote behind them, Dale Hekhuis and Bob Russell will soon take their seats as water board directors with immediate action on campaign promises at the top on their agenda.

On Dec. 4 Hekhuis and Russell take their seats on a board that has devoured careers, good intentions, reputations and friendships.

The perversity of the situation may best be summed up by that fact that sunny skies above is not a sign of good fortune and blessings from heaven. It could be a sign of troubles ahead.

DALE HEKHUIS will be sworn in as a director of the water management district board at the Dec. 4 board meeting. (Nancy Hills photo.)

The peninsula is coming out of three years of low rainfall, more than half the normal amount of inches, but with the "rainy season" still questionable for the upcoming year.

'We are going to have to take on some of the challenges. The days of 'laissez faire' water usage has come to an end.'

— Dale Hekhuis

The total water system has more water in it now than last year at the same time. There is enough water in the two aquifers and two small reservoirs to make it through this year, especially with 20 percent rationing.

If the peninsula receives the same amount of rainfall as it did last year, then 20 percent rationing could suffice. However, less rain will probably require a tightening of restrictions to ensure water for the next year and ameliorate any environmental damage.

But the drought is only one of the concerns of the new board members.

The "first order of the day" Russell said, is to elect a chairperson for the board now that chairperson Nick Lombardo is off the board. Lombardo did not seek re-election.

The most probable candidate for the position of chairman is current director Dick Heuer, who backed Russell and Hekhuis during their campaigns and, as a boardmember, often opposed Lombardo's positions.

Traditionally, that post has gone to the vice chairman, in this case Paul Davis, but Davis is not in the group in power at the moment. Now, the political and environmental majority of the board is with Heuer, Russell, Hekhuis and 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman.

Once the chairperson is elected, probably at the Dec. 4 board meeting, the next order of business, Russell said, is a moratorium on water meter connections.

"What I would really like to see is some temporary freeze on all permits until there is a public hearing on permit restrictions. Then we can discuss what kind of restrictions," Russell said.

Even if it rains enough to bring the peninsula out of a drought, he added, "that has no effect" on a limitation of water meter connections.

"The problem is storage capacity," Russell said, and until that is solved, some kind of restrictions will probably have to stay in place.

The trigger for lifting a limitation is water use, not rainfall, he said. Russell added he is interested in keeping rationing and some sort of limitation in effect until demand is at or below 16,700 acre feet a year. That amount would give the peninsula a "safety net," he said, though "it isn't going to restore Carmel Valley" environment.

He added that he would like the district to investigate the legality of putting a moratorium on water connections for vacant legal lots of record.

Prior to mandatory 20-percent rationing, water production by California-American Water Co. was almost 18,000 acre feet a year.

Russell said he would like to see the limitation stay in effect until some additional water supply project comes on line, or until a dam or reservoir is constructed.

"I probably go farther than the other directors with what I want," Russell admitted.

He said he was unsure if the limitations on water use would affect jobs.

"I think that's a possibility, but not a probability. You have to show me how it would affect employment," he added.

Hekhuis also believes that freezing water meter permits right away is important.

'What I would really like to see is some temporary freeze on all permits until there is a public hearing on permit restrictions. Then we can discuss what kind of restrictions.'

— Bob Russell

"A temporary suspension is necessary to give us time to take stock of where we are at. We are still in an emergency situation,"

BOB RUSSELL was elected to the water board on Nov. 7 and will take his seat at the Dec. 4 board meeting.

Hekhuis said.

For imposition of long-term restrictions, Hekhuis said he is inclined to wait until the allocation environmental impact report is finished and added he would like to see a more complete analysis of the economic impact of restrictions.

"There is some in the (allocation) EIR, but it is not enough," Hekhuis said.

His criteria for lifting rationing, he said, is "more than adequate rainfall through April."

Like Russell, Hekhuis believes that the current drought is only one aspect of the long-term problem.

If nature ends the drought, that will not change the outlook for water supply until a major water supply project is completed.

What kind of restrictions the board may impose will "depend on a lot of things including what shape the drought reserve is

Odellos' Coast Ranch proposal moving forward

By DAVID LELAND

THE ODELLO Brothers' Coast Ranch project has moved ahead in the planning process, with the the draft environmental impact report now available for public comment.

The 2-inch thick draft EIR, prepared by Richmond-based LSA Associates, Inc., can be viewed at the Harrison Memorial Library in Carmel and the Carmel Valley branch of the county library.

In addition, copies will be sent to such groups as the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association and Highlands-Bixby Advisory Committee.

The 45-day comment period ends during the second week of January, according to Kellie Morgantini, county planner. Those comments will be reviewed by the county planning department and inserted into the final EIR.

The 134-acre Coast Ranch site is located near the mouth of the valley and is bordered by Highway 1 on the west and Carmel River on the north, with the Fish Ranch forming the southern and eastern borders.

The Odellos' current proposal calls for continued artichoke farming, residential, commercial and open space.

"Farmland and open space account for more than 60 percent of Coast Ranch," said Barry Throgmorton, project manager, adding that Coast Ranch has been scaled down from 162 units to 90 units.

The proposed schedule for buildout of the residential homes would be five years, he said.

Originally the Odello property entailed 305 acres of land, but the family's portion of land on the southwest side of Highway 1 was purchased by the state Department of Parks and Recreation in 1974. The Odellos continue to farm that land under an agreement with the state.

Proposals to develop the lands of Coast Ranch were submitted to the county in 1962, 1970, 1972, 1977, 1978-79, 1984, 1988 and this year.

Throughout those years the Odello land has been the subject of continued examination as the family introduced new development proposals for the property.

Throgmorton said that the current application takes into account the peninsula's delicate environmental concerns, while allowing for the family to expand on uses for the property.

He stressed that Monterey County will surely benefit from Coast Ranch because the Odellos are allowing their levee abutting the Carmel River to be lowered.

In case of a 100-year flood, their land would be flooded, not that of The Crossroads shopping center or Mission Fields. The flood project would be paid for by the county.

"The family will allow the farm land portion of the development to be used as a floodway, thereby relieving the threat to the densely developed north side of the river," Throgmorton said.

OF PRINCIPAL concern to those observing the proposed development of Coast Ranch are traffic and water. The draft EIR addresses these issues.

Traffic impacts of the project were analyzed by determining trip generation, trip distribution and assignment, according to the draft EIR, which also evaluated potential traffic volume which would occur as a result of the project.

"The family's concern about traffic led to the reduction of lots versus the 162 units permitted in the Carmel Area Land Use Plan," Throgmorton said.

Residential uses of the project, when full buildout was achieved, would generate 847 daily trips, according to the EIR.

Throgmorton said that the commercial portion of the project is expected to be oriented toward traffic already travelling on Highway 1.

"In addition, employee-related inclusionary and farm labor housing could help reduce traffic from the project," said Throgmorton, referring to the idea that a portion of the employees at Coast Ranch would live on-site and not be travelling to and from work.

Regarding water, the EIR indicates that Coast Ranch would use less water than current uses because it takes more water to irrigate artichokes than for residential and commercial use.

"Engineering studies by Salinas-based Lee & Pierce project a net water savings, once the project is fully built out, of between 50 and 70 acre feet of water annually, before retrofitting," Throgmorton said.

Currently the Odellos irrigate their crops via an on-site well. If approved, water serving Coast Ranch would be supplied by the California-American Water Co.

Morgantini said the final EIR could be before the county Subdivision Committee by February, which hears the application before the Monterey County Planning Commission.

The last government body to hold public hearings on Coast Ranch will be the Monterey County Board of Supervisors.

Carmel historical survey meeting, slide show scheduled for Dec. 2

A MEETING to update the progress of the 1989-1990 Carmel Historical Survey will be held from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 2, at the Scout House in Carmel.

Slides of early day houses in Carmel will be shown by Bob DeYoe, whose family were original owners of Carmel Realty.

Materials needed by survey volunteers will be distributed, and information regarding how to properly complete the survey sheets, or other questions will be clarified.

Survey chairman Enid Sales reminds volunteers to deposit finished survey forms at Carmel City Hall as soon as completed. Research teams are at work and need the forms to keep busy with their part of the job. It is not desirable for walking surveyors to wait until they complete their whole assignments, but best to get them into city hall in smaller batches, Sales said

Before the Dec. 2 meeting, those who haven't begun their surveys should familiarize themselves with the locations assigned to them before the meeting.

Many of the volunteers are pleased to find Carmel residents eager to show and share the background of their homes, Sales said.

There may be persons not familiar with the survey, which has the City of Carmel's sponsorship. Each volunteer conducting the survey will have a survey notebook, a letter from Mayor Jean Grace, and a green and white Survey Badge. Badges are numbered, and if there are any questions, residents should ask for the volunteers badge number, and check with the survey office at the Flanders Mansion in Carmel.

A video workshop meeting is planned for a date in January 1990.

Volunteers interested in helping with the survey or needing information are urged to call the survey office at 626-2933 for a questionnaire, and should plan to attend the January videotaped training session.

Researchers work at Carmel City Hall on Tuesday and Friday each week. Anyone interested in helping can contact Charis Buckminster at 625-0818 for details.

PB coastal access improvements to begin Nov. 27

COASTAL ACCESS improvements and restoration work on 17 Mile Drive is scheduled for completion sometime this fall, according to Larry Seeman, vice president of planning and development for the Pebble Beach Co.

The work, which will take place mostly between Point Joe and Fanshell Beach, was halted last June, when the job was "red-tagged" by the county because the company had not secured a grading permit.

Restoration work, which will see revegetation efforts with native plants continuing into next year, will also take place at the Cypress Point and Pescadero Point lookouts.

Current plans come as the result of work with forest residents, state Coastal Commission staff and subcommittee of the Monterey County Planning Commission.

Parking areas around the bluffs between Point Joe and Bird Rock have been reduced into five smaller areas rather than two large ones.

The landscape berms have been lowered to reduce visual impacts, and low wood header board, instead of contrete curbs, are used to define parking areas.

Decomposed granite will be used in all parking areas except for the paved spaces at Cypress Point and Pescadero Point.

Work will entail large trucks and equipment in the shoreline areas and some dirt hauling and grading as some of the parking areas are reshaped.

Cultural commission puts off controversy over theater use

By NANCY HILLS

THE CARMEL Community and Cultural Commission Monday night began reviewing the uses of Forest Theater, but put off the tough questions of rent, season length and hours of operation until its January meeting.

The controversy over season length affects the three theatrical groups that use the Carmel landmark.

The Forest Theater Guild has requested that its season be extended to include Memorial Day weekend at the beginning of the summer season and to extend through the second weekend in September.

Both those times are now used by the other two groups: the Children's Experimental Theater has its spring festival at the beginning of summer and GroveMont begins its four-week run after Labor Day weekend in September. The guild's season now runs 11 weeks in the summer, from the fourth week in June through Labor Day weekend.

Continuing these controversial issues changed what was anticipated as a volatile meeting into one with some discussion of basic "house cleaning" problems.

However, some shades of the ongoing battle between the groups, particularly the Forest Theater Guild versus CET and GroveMont, once again wiggled into the discussions.

Cole Weston, who, along with Hamish Tyler, represented the guild, told the commission that while he "loved what Marcia (Hovick, the head of CET), is doing" he would like to see the theater and facilities beneath the outdoor complex "returned to its original plan."

That means that Hovick, who runs the CET, would have to eliminate her summer program. Two years ago, Hovick began a summer program that uses the Theater in the Ground while the guild uses the outdoor theater above it. Her programs also overlap GroveMont's season.

Stephen Moorer of GroveMont told the board that CET's program in no way interferes with GroveMont's productions.

Also put off until January was a discussion on rents and long-term leases for the facility.

A staff report states that GroveMont pays $25 a day rental for the theater or 10 percent of its gross ticket sales, benefits and concessions, whichever is greater. The guild pays 10 percent of its gross and CET pays a flat fee of $130 with no percentage.

The staff recommends an increase in CET's rent to $260 for the Theater in the Ground and a 10 percent of gross like other theater users are charged, as well as an extension of the $25-a-day fee for the outdoor theater to all groups using the facility.

The commission did approve other maintenance items, such as asking the groups to improve their clean-up of the theater and in advance, submit of plans, including estimated size of the cast and what days each group will be using the theater for rehearsals and activities.

IN LAST week's Pine Cone it was reported that Terry Bishop Grading was the contractor doing the work in the Carmel River erosion control project.

The contrator is Carmel Valley Construction. Terry Bishop Grading, named as the primary contractor, is a sub-contractor.

She wants to preserve character of her little corner of Carmel

By NANCY HILLS

TOO OFTEN, retaining Carmel character involves a lot of talk and little action, but in Louise Stuart's case actions speak louder than words.

"Don't make me a hero, I'm doing it for myself," she cautioned.

When the Carmel Planning Commission meets at 3:30 p.m., Wednesday, Nov. 29 in Carmel City Council chambers it will consider what Stuart calls an unheroic deed.

She is merging her two lots on the corner of Dolores Street and Second Avenue, legally changing the two lots she owns to one lot of record and eliminating a building site.

"We used to live in a rented house when we came here in the 1950s — a large house on two lots on Camino Real — and it was torn down," she explained. "Two houses are built there now. I was distressed and didn't want that to happen to my home once I was gone. Somebody suggested I could merge my lots."

CARMEL RESIDENT Louise Stuart is not waiting for someelse to preserve Carmel's character; she is taking her own steps. Stuart has applied to merge her two lots into one at the next planning commission meeting. (Nancy Hills photo.)

Though it will reduce the price she or her heirs could get for the property, it is worth it, she said.

"That' all right. The property values here are so inflated. I think my children will benefit from one property as much as from two.

"I think there is too much greed here and this current building boom has led to some ugly, ungraceful houses. The community would benefit by having more green space and less of the conformity of a lot of the new houses."

One home of two lots is a common occurance in Carmel, which was originally mapped out to have 40-by-100-foot lots, about 1,000 square feet smaller than the average size lot in California. Once sold, many of the older homes now sitting on more than one of the small lots are demolished so all the lots of record can be used for building sites.

"I like the open space, its more expansive, more gracious," Stuart explained.

The more older homes torn down in Carmel, she said, the more Carmel changes...and not for the better.

"I would like to see (Carmel) retain its charm. This is an absolutely gorgeous area but it can be ruined. I like a sense of the past, it gives continuity and variety. I like the older informal architecture and not these recent recreations of the English village," she said.

The homes now are built for speculation rather than with the personality of the homeowner in mind.

"Now, there are almost no vacant lots left," she added sadly.

Hekhuis, Russell ready for action

in," Hekhuis added.

For the long-term outlook, the allocation EIR "is very important," both Russell and Hekhuis maintain.

The EIR analyzes the environmental repercussions of the different levels of water production, from the natural system to supply demand. Currently, the district limits production at 20,000 acre feet, non-rationing level, a production level it has yet to reach. The district is expected to issue the final report late January or early February next year.

The draft EIR found that 17,500 acre feet is the least environmentally damaging of the water production levels offered by the district for analysis. The production levels analyzed were 17,500 acre feet, 18,400 acre feet (pre-rationing production), 20,000 acre feet and 20,500 acre feet.

Increased water demand and production concurrently increases the number of times the peninsula will have to go on rationing to ensure an adequate supply, the report states.

"We've allocated beyond what we have and the only exception waiving the environmental considerations is if to do so is in the interest of public health and safety," Russell said.

Some relief, both Hekhuis and Russell stated, could come through increasing the water supply through the interim water supply projects.

Projects listed by staff as projects that could be implemented quickly and are currently under review include replacing plumbing hardware with low-water use fixtures, using reclaimed water on the Pacific Grove golf course and cemetery, a public agency grant program to encourage increased use of non-drinkable water for irrigating open space and greenbelts and additional wells in the south Seaside aquifer. Projects that require a longer planning process to bring on line are desalination, north Seaside aquifer wells and the use of reclaimed water on Carmel Valley golf courses.

All of these programs will be discussed at the Monday, Dec. 4 board meeting.

Health department restrictions are greater for use of reclaimed water on Carmel Valley golf courses because those courses drain into the Carmel Valley aquifer.

Hekhuis said the board also needs to take a "careful look at the rationing program."

"What I want is to see information on who has saved what — residents, businesses, government, golf courses, hotels, motels," he said. "They have been very loose in granting variances. I think there is a potential for tightening up the rationing program."

"We are going to have to take on some of the challenges. The days of laissez faire water usage has come to an end," he said.

Other changes both Hekhuis and Russell will be looking into are changes in the relationship between the staff and the board.

Russell, in particular, said he believed that the chairperson should be the spokesperson for the district; the staff, especially the general manager, should be removed from politics.

"That way, the staff can give accurate information, not massaged numbers to please the political situation," Russell said, stating that he realized he must be willing to take technical advice that is contrary to a program or political stance he has promoted.

But for all the good ideas and campaign rhetoric, action on water issues that is visible to the public is needed, Hekhuis.

"We need to prove ourselves quick. This is the last chance for the district," Hekhuis said.

Carmel area water board results in

THE TWO candidates recently elected to the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District Board of Directors certainly received the support of Carmel area voters, according to the Monterey County Elections Department.

Dale Hekhuis and Bob Russell, who both are in favor of limiting new water meter connections, easily outdistanced incumbent Billy DeBerry in the Nov. 7 election. Each seat carries a four-year term.

DeBerry's only two victories in the 15 peninsula jurisdictions, reaching from Sand City to Point Lobos, occured in his home town of Seaside and adjacent Sand City, where future hotel development is planned.

Local results are as follows:

- Carmel: Hekhuis 1,009; Russell 830; DeBerry 223.
- Carmel Valley: Hekhuis 2,136; Russell 1,938; DeBerry 586.
- Point Lobos: Hekhuis 539; Russell 490; DeBerry 140.
- Carmel Woods: Hekhuis 367; Russell 322; DeBerry 88.
- Pebble Beach: Hekhuis 1,091; Russell 984; DeBerry 260.
- Pacific Grove: Hekhuis 2,415; Russell 2,528; DeBerry 616.

Total voter turnout for the election was 36.2 percent, according to the county elections office.

The city of Carmel reported a voter turnout of between 29 percent and 40 percent.

Freeway opponents to square off

"Unless we stop Caltrans from moving ahead, we're never going to have the process opened up," he said. "And this (forum) illustrates this one more time."

For its part, Caltrans appears to be making an effort to keep locals notified of its plans.

Earlier this month, a Caltrans-Hatton Canyon Information telephone number was installed — 624-8904.

"We believe that this service will provide better understanding of the project and the congestion relief it would provide," said Pollock, adding that this approach marks the first of its kind.

In addition to hearing a recorded message, residents can also leave a message if they have more questions that need to be answered.

"I'm hoping it won't turn into be a phone-in campaign," said Pollock, who did not know how many calls had been registered. "The problem is that there is as much misinformation going around as information."

The format at the forum is as follows: Holm and Larson will give a 30-minute presentation; Caltrans will give a 30-minute presentation; each side will have five minutes of rebuttal time; and then public comments and questions.

Figures on water pumping reveal pumping up, per-pump down

By NANCY HILLS

BOTH THE total amount of water pumped from the Carmel Valley aquifer by private pumpers and the number of private wells in Carmel Valley have increased, but the average amount pumped per well has decreased.

That is according to Monterey Peninsula Water Management District assistant hydrologist Bruce Laclergue, who compiled the district's annual production report for private wells.

The reporting period covers the time period from July 1, 1988 to June 30, 1989, six months in mandatory 20-percent rationing and six months on voluntary 10-percent rationing.

Laclergue explained that during the reporting same period from 1987 to 1988, private pumpers pulled about 2,356 acre feet from the aquifer. This last reporting year, it was 2,662 acre feet, an increase of 306 acre feet.

However, there are 30 new wells in the valley, most using about five to 10 acre feet a year, he said.

The average per pump in the 1987 to 1988 year was about 22 acre feet per well, while this year it was about 18 acre feet.

Of the largest pumpers in the valley, outgoing water district chairman Nick Lombardo's four wells for his two golf courses at Rancho Canada Golf Club pumped about 20 percent less than the year before. This last reporting year, Lombardo's wells tallied 521.7 acre feet. The year before the number was about 655.6 acre feet, Laclergue said. Lombardo recently installed a new $800,000 irrigation system.

Laclergue cautioned that the district has changed its method of calculation from the 1987-88 year to the past year's report. Most of the private wells in Carmel are not metered and the district uses a mathematical formula to convert energy used by the pumps to the amount of acre feet extracted by the wells. Pacific Gas & Electric provides the energy numbers.

Carmel Golf & Country Club reduced the amount its wells pumped from 266.8 acre feet to 198 acre feet. Carmel Valley Ranch increased from 307 acre feet to 394.9 acre feet.

Laclergue reported that Carmel Valley Ranch was having problems with one well and the energy numbers used to convert to acre feet may be inaccurate, and it actually could be lower. The well has now been fixed, he added.

The big California-American Water Co. pumps that supply most of the water for the peninsula went from 10,018 in 1987-88 to 7,336 acre feet in Carmel Valley but increased its pumping by 405 acre feet in the Seaside aquifer as a part of the water management system imposed by the district.

Laclergue has made a plea to the district board for them to require major and medium wells be metered. That recommendation will be considered by the district board Dec. 4.

How to avoid 'Holiday Blues'

THE HOLIDAY season is upon us. For many, it is a time of joy, the renewing of old acquaintances, and the renewal of family ties. In some people, this season can create a mixture of emotions of joy, sadness, excitement and anxiety.

For some, however, the expectations and pressures can create an overload of stress and they experience depression known as the "Holiday Blues." This type of depression is situational. It is often triggered by memories of holidays past, that are projected upon the present; or it can be brought on by attempting to live up to unrealistic expectations of how the holidays should be.

The average American already lives with more than an optimum of stress for his/her mental health well-being. The holiday season can be a time when the child-like hopes and dreams of many surface with no realistic hope of being fulfilled. This can trigger overstress for the individual with accompanying feelings of frustration, hopelessness and eventually depression.

Here are a few tips for handling this kind of stress which can lead to depression:

- Talk out your feelings with a level-headed person you trust.
- Work off your feelings of anger or anxiety through hobbies and exercise.
- Take things one at a time.
- Do what you and your family really want to and not should do.
- Let go of the past and create a holiday that fits for you and your family.
- Watch your diet — especially your intake of sweets and alcohol.
- Above all be kind to yourself.

Family Service Agency provides counseling by experienced counselors on a sliding fee schedule. The agency is here to help you find effective ways to cope with stress and have more satisfying, healthy relationships. For more information, please call 373-4421.

The social whirl

EXCLUSIVE DINNERS, receptions, award events, a brand-new festival and a fabulous ball kept the social pot bubbling over this past week.

Exclusive dinners: The dramatic arrival of the Beaujolais Nouveau at The Inn at Spanish Bay and the Hospice dinner in the Monterey home of the Lee Earlys. And, once again, Friends of the Monterey Institute of International Studies (MIIS) brought social luminaries to their feet with the Orient Express Ball at the Monterey Sheraton Hotel, while awards went to volunteers (without whom our cultural fabric would disintegrate).

The Pebble Beach Co. has a propensity for ideas that attract attention — something special and different. They joined the realm of blockbusterdom with the Beaujolais Nouveau Festival, which was the new fall event for 1989. The Wolfgang Puck dinner to benefit Easter Seal Society followed an hour and a half of fun, food and excitement in a tent off the lobby of The Inn at Spanish Bay.

The Barton & Guestier Beaujolais Nouveau arrived right on schedule. It was delivered by a horse-drawn wagon and piped in by a Scottish Band as hundreds milled around the lobby and tent. Although many of us have been to France for such a festival, this is a first for the MP brought by Mercedes Benz of North America, Seagram Classic Wine Co. and the Pebble Beach Co.

Official tasters had their say first. Emcee Alan Richmond declared, "It's perfect. It has to be to go with Wolfgang Puck's cooking." Chef Puck said, "It's delicious," (and he proceeded to sip it as he gave his cooking demo later, sharing it with anyone who held out a commemorative glass).

Tom Oliver sensed a puckish taste and winemaster Fred Dame solemnly pronounced, "This wine has depth, dignity and honor." Now, we all know that what we have been hearing is true — 1989 is an outstanding wine year.

Chef-to-the-stars-of-tinseltown Wolfgang Puck flew up from LA in Marv Davis's private plane (sans Marv), bringing the lamb he prepared for the dinner menu. He gave his Shrimp Cake demo in the Dunes Restaurant, giving out recipes about which he said, "Leave out what you don't like and add what you do like." (Finding he has a love affair with black pepper, I know where to start.)

The charity dinner was served in The Bay Club preceeded by scrumptious Fois Gras on Grilled Country Bread and Caviar on New Potatoes with Mumm Cordon Rouge Champagne NV in the Private Dining Room.

For dinner, Shrimp Cakes/Salad, Roasted King Salmon and Grilled Lamb were accompanied by B & G wines and followed by a full plate of a variety of desserts. Someone remarked "The dessert is worth the price of the dinner." (At $150 that's a dessert lover.)

PB Co. president Tom Oliver announced they plan to make this an annual event. The board and directors of the local chapter of the Easter Seal Society are delighted. It will mean more assistance to those who need it so much. The disabled.

However, dinner in a home is always the warmest and most elegant. As was the $500-a-plate dinner (to benefit Hospice), that Col. & Mrs. F. Lee Early gave in their home to honor entertaining guru Martha Stewart.

Such a guest list is limited to those who are truly interested in supporting Hospice and social amenities are more intimate and relaxing. It is possible to go to the kitchen and watch the hostess check on her award-winning beef dish and see the Laura Bride Powers Award she received for her outstanding work with the History & Art Associaiton on the kitchen wall.

Blossom Hampton, Suzanne Obaid, Dory Urcis, Nathalie Cole-Johnson, Bob Nunes, Tom and Margaret Oliver, Bernard and Hilde Bedborough, Mark and Jennifer Lupo and Jim Josoff and Wm. Earnest Brown (dashing up from LA), were some of the guests. Jim Agee and Mary Cunningham Agee were unable to be there due to earthquake damage in their Pebble home and pressing business in Idaho.

The Earlys are the most gracious of hosts, creating the perfect atmosphere for sheer enjoyment. Mrs. Early has given so much to our local community that people rush to assist her in such a special evening. The 1983 Schramsberg Champagne was donated by SF folk to sip while nibbling Beluga caviar and pate courtesy of the hosts.

Super home-chef Dory Urcis created the Sea Bique, Onion/Potato Tartlettes and a special dessert — Swiss chocolate shell-shaped dish for mousses with raspberries. Wendy Brody (Stonepine's kitchen artist), made her First Prize (designer) Salad and Lemon Sorbet.

Favors from Hermes were delivered to the Earlys' doorstep by Cheri Threadgill, manager of Hermes, San Fran. What a treat!

The very thought of the famous Orient Express train conjures up thoughts of glamor in its purest form. Air travel has always been more a matter of amazement due to time. A bit of excitement was brought back with the Concord. But, again, the appeal was time saved, not glamor.

If one doesn't have the luxury of money to board the exotic train in Paris for Vienna, Venice, Florence, Rome or Istanbul, then the next best thing was to join the MIIS magic. Let your imagination do the traveling as you become a fantasist for one evening.

The bonus is that you spend a special evening with the topnotch people of the Monterey Peninsula and the creme de la creme of international representatives. A stimulating opportunity that does not present itself often. An evening with a purpose — to raise money for international scholarships at the Monterey Institute of International Studies.

MIIS is of immense importance internationally. As global politics take dramatic and unpredictable turns, it is of the utmost urgency to prepare the young people of the world to meet those challenges.

Friends of MIIS held the reception hour amidst casually draped Orientalia from Conway of Asia. Inside the Sheraton Ballroom the MIIS magic mural (by Mrs. Sharon Clark), was the backdrop for the bandstand. In the mural the famed Orient Express was steamed up and ready to depart on an alluring adventure.

On a scale of 1 to 10, the Orient Express Ball rates a 9. (perhaps a nine and a half). A few famous passengers failed to make the "All Aboooard" call for the journey into legend. Some were called to an important conference in D.C., while others experienced difficulty making the journey from SF to the MP. A full dozen Consuls General (and/or deputies), managed to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Dag Mork Ulnes of Norway (who have been stationed in SF only four weeks), were on their way for their first visit here when their car brakes failed. They left their car in Palo Alto, rented another and made it to the party.

Mr. and Mrs. Ichiro Kawabata of the Consulate Office of Japan, were pleased to return again after their recent visit for the opening of the Art Asia Museum Hirado Exhibit.

Among the latest American fashions, we saw exclamation points of international attire. Guests came from all over California and all over the world. From Austria, Canada, China, Denmark, France, Germany, Greece, Japan, Norway, Spain, Taiwan and Turkey.

Le Menu la Diner by Heinz Guggisburg lived up to the exoticism of the evening and intensified the desire to travel on the train. Two guests of the evening will board the Venice Simplon Orient Express from Paris through the 12½-mile Simplon Tunnel to Venice, paying $2,500 for the first live auction item. Auctioneer David Armanasco ended with the highest bid of the evening for the 25th item: a 14-day Mediterranean Seabourne Cruise at a cool $14,000. More than $40,000 will go to the scholarship fund from the auctions.

Chris and David Armanasco, general planners of this great event, capped it off with a Sunday Brunch at Durney Vinyards for the Consuls, MIIS President Robert Gard, his wife, and T. Scott Moore, president of Friends of MIIS. The day brought clear skies, warmth and sun as a fare-the-well to the distinguised visitors.

"Priceless ingredients of our non-profit agencies," is what master of ceremonies, Fred Roselind, called the valued volunteers at the 14th Annual Community Service Awards held at the Monterey Sheraton.

Outstanding (giving) citizens from 30 organizations received certificates of recognition and six received the coveted Carnation Silver Bowl Award. Bowl award winners were Vernon Miller (at age 16, he is the youngest person ever to receive this award. He won it for his Fort Ord Family Support Division Youth Services); Kay Dyer (Suicide Prevention Center for her work with survivors of sudden death and griefbusters for children); Helen McCaig (representing Friends Outside); Michael Adamson (Alzheimers Association); Donald Marsh (Monterey County AIDS Project); and lastly Sandre Cunha.

IRENE MACKENZIE (who decorated the tables for MIIS ball), Kenneth Booth (auction committee), and Graeme Mackenzie in international attire and black tie.

MEMBERS OF Friends of MIIS Lucille Huntington, Sue Dewar, and Dee Robertson (in charge of auction items), joined Stephen Moorer, artistic director of GroveMont, at the silent auction table before the Orient Express Ball.

Ms. Cunha received the Rusty Stratton Award. The late Mrs. Stratton was founder of the Volunteer Center and was presented by her husband Col. Malcolm Stratton. Other presenters were Robert Griffin, Faye Messinger, Kathy Nash, Becky Allen, and Dr. Philip Nash.

The board of the Monterey County Symphony Association honored Diane Nicholeris with a reception in the Pebble home of Mr. and Mrs. John Titherington following the afternoon concert at King Hall at which Ms. Nicholeris was violin soloist as well as concertmaster.

The Lighthouse Keepers Club celebrated its 50th anniversary last Thursday with a reception at Martine Inn. Of course, silver was in, but gold made an appearance also when president Dolores Robertson presented checks for $1,000 each to Erma Dinkel (president of Chautauqua Hall Preservation Society), and to Tom Trovato of PG PRIDE. $500 donations were made to David Avenue Pre-School and Josephine Kearns Memorial Swim School Program.

Glistening silver pieces with pink bouquets provided the symbolic backdrop for a lavish display of food. The Martines, Don and Marion (owners of Martine Inn), welcomed the guests, including PG Mayor Morris Fisher.

1990 LK president Karen Mignano and Joan Orchard were co-chairwomen for the anniversary party. Committee members were Erma Dinkel, Nadine Annand, Harriet Johansen, Marie Lopez, and Prudente Stone. Gladys Baskin received plaudits for chairing the auction that raised the money for the donations.

Mickey Pictulka announced the date of the Annual Christmas Party: Dec. 10th at the American Legion Hall in Carmel.

A local team in the Symphony Guild's 26th Golden Domino Tournament came in third. John A. Andrews, Jr. and Jeff

Flu season

ALTHOUGH THE purpose of this column is to offer information regarding senior issues, I feel it is timely to reproduce part of an article from The John Hopkins Medical Letter regarding flu shots.

"If you are reasonably healthy, flu is just one of the unpleasant possible consequences of winter. An upper respiratory viral infection, flue — short for influenza — is usually heralded by the abrupt onset of fever, chills, and muscular aches, followed in a few days by dry cough, sore throat, or nasal congestion. (What many people call "stomach flu" is not influenza at all; the virus rarely produces gastrointestinal symptoms.)

"Usually, the illness runs its course within a week, although many people experience a lingering tiredness known as posting syndrome, but for a great number of people who are older or have a chronic illness, flu and its complications — mainly infections of the lower respiratory system such as bronchitis or pneumonia — can be serious, even life threatening.

"Flu can spread far and fast; in the past century alone there have been seven global outbreaks, called pandemics. These occur because flu does not behave like most viruses.

"Usually when a virus invades the body, certain proteins on its surface —, called antigens — stimulate the body's immune system to produce infection-fighting antibodies. But antibodies are like a key that fits only into a particular antigen lock, so antibodies for any particular virus are effective only against that virus. Once produced, however, they remain in the system and provide protection from reinfection.

"Not so with flu. The flu virus is covered in an armorlike protein casing studded with antigens that are very unstable. In what is known medically as antigenic drift, these antigens often change as the virus replicates. There are three major strains of influenza virus — dubbed A, B and C — but drifts allow for permutations within these groups. This means that the antibodies your body created in response to past bouts of flu, or past flu vaccines, may not be effective in future exposures. Thus you need a new vaccination.

"Every year about 20 million Americans receive the flu shot. This prevents illness for about 80 percent exposed to the virus. Even if you get the flu it is generally mild. This year's vaccine is made from killed influenza viruses, and includes protection against the three most serious flu strains (two type A strains and one type B). You should not be vaccinated if you have an allergy to egg protein."

Flu vaccines are usually given in November. Even if you do receive the shot, flu is normally manageable and is over after a short time.

You should be vaccinated if you:

- are over 65;
- have chronic lung or heart problems;
- are being treated for kidney disease, diabetes, anemia or severe asthma;
- live in a nursing home or long term medical care center;
- are a health care provider;
- live with someone at high risk;
- are traveling abroad.

If you do get the flu be sure to see your doctor since there are remedies available to lessen the symptoms.

Carmel's young adults

DO CARMEL'S young adults have a good reputation or are they treated with little respect by the adults of our community? I feel that the young adults living in and around Carmel are among the best there are, and they are not receiving the respect that they so well deserve.

John Barrett, a senior at Carmel High School, shares his story about how a small number of kids can damage the reputation of us all.

"I was upset with a letter," he says, "which was written to the editor of the Carmel Pine Cone,in regard to some teenagers' ignorance of the earthquake victims. These few teenagers, by purchasing dozens of eggs in order to vandalize, have made our reputation in this community tarnished."

I feel it is true that these eggs were wasted and could have been used in the homeless areas up north, but it is not entirely the teenagers' fault. The merchants allowed the kids to buy these large quantities of eggs on Halloween when the suspicions of what was to be done with them were quite evident. Nevertheless, those kids did commit unnecessary and vandalous acts, for which the blame has now been put on the young adults in Carmel in general.

With the recent earthquake, the teenagers in Carmel are having a hard time determining what they should and shouldn't do. Is it all right to have fun while many kids our age are living in tents just 30 miles north of us? Another problem that teenagers have had to deal with in livng in Carmel is being raised in an area known mainly for its tourism. With the beautiful surroundings and historical monuments, it is not exactly a teenager's paradise.

However, the students at Carmel High School have been able to overcome these problems and have always been a warm, caring and generous group of kids. After the recent earthquake Carmel High students started an earthquake relief fund of its own and have already donated a large sum of money. Many students have volunteered to work in donation stations in Watsonville, and this year's blood drive has probably been the most successful ever.

Cap. Don Fuselier of the Carmel Police Department states, "99.9 percent of the kids in this area are good law-abiding citizens. The main problem we have with the teenagers around here is that many of them just hang out."

Vandalism, alcohol, and drugs are also problems which exist, but they are at a much smaller scale. The small percentage of teenagers who do commit these crimes are the ones who cause most of the problems, and often cause adults to stereotype their personalities on all young adults.

Carmel High School's principal, Marie Ishida feels very strongly about this topic. "I think students at this school," she says, "are an exceptionally good group of kids. They are certainly not worse than the average high school age group around the country."

Those of the adult community that have been involved with Carmel's youth have come to realize how responsible and mature we really can be. If what I have said about the teenagers in Carmel is not believable, then take time out to get to know a few of them, and you too will realize what a good group of kids we really are.

SOMETIMES THAT

By Nancy Hills

Far from home

WHAT IS it like to be thousands of miles away when your family and friends are experiencing a major catastrophe? I asked Peggy and Ron Hansen, who were visiting their daughter and son-in-law in Portugal on Oct. 17.

"It was frightening and frustrating," Peggy told me. "A woman who spoke English came running out of the hotel yelling that there had been 'a terrible earthquake in San Francisco!' We ran in to watch TV and saw the pictures but couldn't understand any of the words, so we didn't really know where the damage had been, what had really happened."

It was some time before they could get through on the telephone and learn that their family, friends, and home were safe. Then came their distress over the devastation that did occur elsewhere. And something else: some sense that they missed out on sharing an experience that was of such importance in the lives of many close to them.

THERE ARE many unsung heroes of the earthquake and its aftermath. I want to sing about one of them: Terry Baumgart. Terry, who shares my Carmel Point home with me, is a social worker with the Monterey County Mental Health Department. She speaks Spanish fluently. The day after the earthquake, and for 17 straight days after that, she went up to Pajaro to counsel victims of the quake — families and individuals. She worked from early morning until late at night, seeing as many as 25 people every day. She ate her meals with them, and wore the same outer garments nearly every day so they would recognize and feel comfortable with her. When she could, she came back to Salinas and tried to keep up with her regular caseload as well.

I watched Terry for signs of physical fatigue or mental burnout; little showed. There were special problems: her clients' distrust of "the system" and undocumented workers' fears that they would be deported if they sought help. Terry wasn't the only local worker who went to Pajaro: her supervisor, project manager Maureen Lavengood, coordinated the effort in the absence of Bob Egnew, county mental health director, who was vacationing in Europe. But it was Terry I saw coming home late every night, burdened, and starting off again the next morning with renewed determination. I asked her if she was getting paid for all this extra time and effort. Her response: "I don't know. I haven't asked."

TWO WEEKS ago, on a brilliant Saturday afternoon, high tides and big rollers brought out the season's first surf watchers at Carmel Point. I found that I wasn't alone in feeling that it was a very special time. Pondering that, I concluded that it was special, as always, because it was the first exciting wave action of the season. It was also special this November because it was so good to experience a side of nature that is exhilarating (if also potentially dangerous) instead of purely devastating (earthquakes).

THAT SAME early November weekend I sent out to Asilomar to watch the climax of "The Asilomar Weekend" for my daughter and 250 other energetic, enthusiastic Scottish dancers. This is the intensive weekend of dancing and music sponsored by the San Francisco branch of the Royal Scottish Country Dance Society.

The Saturday night ball — seen from the balcony of Merrill Hall — is a marvelous kaleidoscope of whirling ball gowns and formal jackets, with colorful Scotch plaids everywhere. Among registrants from the Monterey Peninsula: Brian and Marguerite Campbell, Denise Underwood, Monterey; Sara Gratiot of Marina; David and Linda Hollifield of Pacific Grove.

Not present at Asilomar that weekend but active and enthusiastic Scottish dancers: Carmel Police Chief Jack McGilvray and his wife. They danced every dance at the Forest Theater one Sunday afternoon last summer and Chief McGilvray also took over as emcee — when he could catch his breath.

UNSOLVED MYSTERY: who — and where — are Annette and Tony?

A couple of weeks ago, when I made my usual rounds of Saturday morning garage sales in Carmel, I bought some used videotapes. (Well, for a dollar apiece.) To my surprise, one of them still had on it the complete record of a Christmas season wedding at The Lodge at Pebble Beach! The bride and groom? "Annette" and "Tony." Now, it's hard for me to believe that the couple wanted to sell this very special tape: tell me it isn't so! If anyone out there knows the couple, or if they themselves should read this, I can be reached through the Pine Cone and will be delighted to return the tape to them. No charge.

JUST AS I didn't know — weeks later — where I had bought those tapes, the owners of garage sale property sometimes wish they knew who purchased that property. For instance: a woman placed an ad in the Pine Cone some time ago, attempting to locate the person who bought a set of golf club covers at her sale. They were ones she had lovingly knitted for each of her son's clubs and they were individual, personal and very special. They had been added to the garage sale pile by accident. So far as I know, she never did get them back.

On a happier note: I've had a number of lucky finds at garage sales; one of the nicest was finding a genuine early Hummel figurine on a table of much less valuable items. It was hard to see the Hummel signature on the figurine because of its age, but my find was verified by a local shop owner. That will be $3 please! Then there was the time when I thought I might have found an authentic Picasso. Got as far as the DeYoung museum in San Francisco, only to be told by the experts there that it was a Picasso all right — a good copy, but only a copy. I gave it to my favorite brother-in-law for Christmas.

Familiar faces on the garage sale circuit: local artist and teacher Joe Tanous and his wife, who turn around and have one of the best sales of the year at their own Carmel residence. What are you going to do with that antique milk can, Joe?

SPLENDID SENIOR

There's a song in Pippin: "I'm going to live 'til I die." That's Betty Fowlston's philosophy, and she lives that philosophy today, at 81.

A teacher for many years, and still substituting; an actress "since I was tall enough to see in a mirror"; a community volunteer who cares about the environment; a woman who is very excited because she has just taken on a new challenge — membership in the Gentrain Society ("It's like starting to study history all over."). And all this is after a period frm 1983 to 1988 during which she had 10 surgical procedures, some of them major.

True to her philosophy, this Carmel resident says: "I am grateful for having waited so long before having to start all that, and then having it all at once." She says it's over now except that she still has "a little trouble" with her knee. I knew Betty during that time and had no idea that she had had to undergo so many surgical procedures. "I wouldn't let it interfere," she said when I expressed my amazement. "I refused to give in to it."

You could say that Betty Fowlston flaunts her age and her frailties, if any. Take those sweaters that she wears — proudly — even to the schools where she is a substitute teacher. They have such jolly letterings as: "Positively over 60," "Droopy buns," "Take my advice — I'm over 40," "Nearly famous," and "Approximate location of navel and old waistline."

If you get the idea that this is a gallant person who can make fun of herself in a healthy fashion, you are quite right. At the same time, she manages to provide entertainment for others, especially through her considerable talents as an actress. Some of what she does best is comedy, but she is equally able to wring our hearts (as she did last year in MPC's production of Private Life of the Master Race).

Betty's favorite role is that of Mary, mother of Jesus, in Family Portrait, which she did in St. Louis and locally. Just remembering the play's last line (hers) reduced this sensitive woman to tears. It was: "I'd like to have you call him Jesus; I don't want him forgotten."

Today, Betty enjoys good health, except for that sometimes ailing knee. She did a TV commercial as Mrs. Santa Claus last year, was in*Show Boat* at the Forest Theater recently, and will act again "if a part comes along that I really want to do." She is a volunteer at Community Hospital and holds her own on the sandwich line in the Meals on Wheels kitchen. She travels, and everywhere she goes it is the people she meets who give her vitality. Doing something directly with people is the keynote for her. Nowadays she chooses what she does more carefully, her only concession to her years.

"You don't have to be doddery. I don't believe in that!" Betty Fowlston's philosophy of life is as good today as it was when she looked into the mirror and saw an actress there. Then — and now — it was "You should dare to do anything you want to do, within your own moral standards."

HOW THIS RAKE CAN SAVE YOUR LIFE.

This simple garden tool is a firefighter. It can help you clear away brush and leaves that act like kindling around your home. And you.

So if you live near the forest, do a little raking. And that's not all. Landscape your home with a fire retardant plant like ivy. Use spark arrester screens on your chimney and vents. And put fire retardant material on your roof and underneath your house where it is exposed.

Because a forest fire burns more than trees.

LOCAL FAMILIES TO BE ADOPTED BY PROJECT SANTA IN ITS SECOND YEAR ON THE PENINSULA

Project SANTA (Salvation Army Asks Neighbors to Adopt) will help more than twice as many families as last year, according to Jim Cota, the project's founder. The project's start-up date is an Open House on Tuesday, Nov. 28 from 1 to 7 p.m. at The Salvation Army Community Center at 1491 Contra Costa, Seaside.

Cota, the president of Tucker Van and Storage, is looking for families who want to share the joy of Christmas with others - "To adopt as family — not just to give someone something, but to share time with them — bring a tree to their home, a basket of food, toys — whatever the family needs to make Christmas a day of joy."

The Cota family started to "adopt" families when they realized that there are some beautiful trees used to decorate places of business which are just abandoned when everyone goes home to celebrate Christmas. They called Salvation Army social workers to find the name a family who could use the decorated tree from Tucker Van and Storage.

"It took just a few more steps to realize that there are many families like that — and that it's not only a tree they need. When we delivered our tree to a needy family, we found out that the children couldn't look forward to a Christmas of any kind, with gifts or toys, or a special dinner. So we just decided to "adopt" the family and share our Christmas joy with them," said Cota.

A special part of project SANTA, according to Cota, is knowing that the joy brought to people at Christmas can be turned into sense that there is hope for the future. The Salvation Army's participation serves to provide social workers to locate needy families and to ensure additional relief for families with special needs.

Last year's chief sponsor was the City of Seaside, with supporters including the Chambers of Commerce, Bank of America, Community Hospital, the Hyatt Regency, Griffith's Furniture, York School Key club and many other individuals, businesses, churches, and service organizations.

For information on how to "Adopt a Family" for Christmas, call Salvation Army at 899-4911, or Jim Cota at Tucker Van and Storage, 394-6586.

SPECIAL OLYMPICS BEGINS "FREE AGENT" SIGNINGS

It took George Steinbrenner $2.2 million to sign New York Yankee slugger Don Mattingly in 1989 and the Los Angeles Dodgers were forced to dip into their coffers $10 million deep to ink pitcher Orel Hershiser, but Monterey County businesses have fallen into line for a major sports bargain with the Special Olympics "Sponsor An Athlete" program announced recently.

Area businesses, or individuals, can "sign" a Special Olympics athlete to a 1990 playing contract for the total sum of $500; no fine print, no long-term deferred annuity packages, no salary arbitration, no holdouts and best of all, a rich and rewarding experience with Special Olympics.

The $500 sponsorship package covers the cost of an athlete's equipment, competition, travel and lodging for the 1990 calender year. Athletes generally compete in local, regional and statewide events such as aquatics, basketball, bowling, softball, skiing and skating.

"We're delighted to provide this program to Monterey County," Special Olympics Executive Director Karen Fulton said. "From our initial introduction of 'Sponsor An Athlete' we feel we've created a fun — and cost effective — method in which sponsors can participate with our athletes and most importantly, establish a personal relationship with the athlete."

Information on this program can be obtained by calling the Monterey County Special Olympics office at 373-1972.

hurting people in our communities. "We're expecting as many as 500 people or more", said Simic, "we don't want to leave any one out!".

The Monterey Beach Hotel has donated the use of their ballroom for this special event. Dinners will be served from noon to 5 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 23. The menu includes tossed green salad, carved turkey with cornbread and chestnut stuffing, cranberry sauce, mashed potatoes with gravy, fresh vegetables, rolls and butter, pumpkin and apple pie, and milk, coffee, or tea.

Hostess and coordinator for this event is model/actress Pamela Newman, vice president of the women's group at the Carmel Presbyterian Church.

"Thanksgiving is a day for giving thanks to God for all his many blessings to us", says Pamela, "and then reching out to others. In the Bible, Jesus said, 'If you do this to the least of these my brethren, you do it unto me'. This is an opportunity for us to give to those in need. I'm so thankful for Mr. Simic and his generosity in giving to those less fortunate. God bless you Mr. Simic, and thank you!"

According to Newman, there are many people involved behind the scenes who deserve special thanks: Chuck and Renata West and the management team of the Monterey Beach Hotel, which include Stephanie Klein and Gary Kohler; the Salvation Army in Salinas and Watsonville for providing transportation for hundreds of families left homeless by the earthquake; Tony the Watsonville "Mushroom Man," who will be donating a long-stemmed rose to each lady attending; to Kathi Kulper and Della Cass of the Carmel Presbyterian Church who will be making the banners and favors for the event; and to Carmel Gifts and Florists for donating the floral centerpiece for the banquet.

Says Simic, "We care for and appreciate our communities. It is hoped by all those involved that those in need will join us in celebrating this holiday with us."

The Monterey Beach Hotel is located at 2600 Sand Dunes Drive (Highway 1 and Canyon del Rey Boulevard). For further information contact Pam Newman or Mira Stankovich at 624-7522.

THOSE IN NEED FIND "ROOM AT THE INN" THIS HOLIDAY SEASON AT THE DOUBLETREE HOTEL MONTEREY

There will be "Room at the Inn" when the Doubletree Hotel in Monterey again provides free, short-term lodging accommodations to those in need during this holiday season.

As in past years, the hotel plans to meet the growing need in the community for emergency accommodations, a need most acutely felt during the holidays by the less fortunate.

"Room at the Inn" will provide free rooms to those requiring emergency accommodations when there are no other alternatives available. Referrals to the hotel are made by the United Way agencies, the Salvation Army, YWCA of the Monterey Peninsula, Family Resource Center, the Catholic Social Services, the Red Cross and the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

"In the spirit of giving, the Doubletree Hotel is reaching out to help the less fortunte during this special time of the year," said Dan Brown, director of marketing. "We want to bring some light and warmth into the lives of these people who, for whatever reason, find themselves in unfortunate circumstances."

Doubletree Hotels began "Room at the Inn" a few years ago, discovering an ever-increasing need for the community service and has upped the scope of the program each year to fill that need. Doubletree has now established the program as an annual holiday tradition that will be presented as a gift to all the communities where the hotels are located.

Meals on Wheels needs volunteers

Drivers and other volunteers are needed to deliver 200 meals daily to shut-ins and the handicapped on the peninsula for Meals on Wheels.

According to Chuck Poland, a Carmel volunteer, 200 homes are served with three meals five days a week from Carmel Valley to Marina, but 22 volunteer drivers are needed daily to deliver those meals.

"We were seven drivers short the other day," said Poland, who has been pressed into service so often that he's driving almost daily now. "It means a lot to these people. You thank your lucky stars when you leave."

Poland said there are 22 routes, three of them in the Carmel area. One route usually takes from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. (including driving to and from the pick-up point in Pacific Grove).

Each shut-in is delivered a breakfast, one cold meal (usually sandwich, salad and juice), and one hot meal.

Almost all of the help is from volunteers, Poland said, so often the agency ends up shorthanded. If you would like to volunteer to help out, contact Meals on Wheels at 375-4454.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

God's 'law of love says it all'

From the Carmel Pine Cone, Nov. 19, 1981

Almost 100 years ago, an eccentric Anglican deacon and mathematics professor at Oxford wrote Alice in Wonderland under the psuedonym Lewis Carroll. This novel appeals to both young and old, and many of its characters have become part of the world's folklore.

The duchess says, "'Tis so; 'tis true, oh 'tis true; 'tis love that makes the world go 'round."

Having said this and argued that it is true, we can now argue that no four-letter word in the English language is so abused, misused and misunderstood as LOVE.

Once, on a trip to New York, I saw a powerful but morbid play by Graham Greene, The LIving Room. In one scene, an elderly priest in a wheelchair berates his two old maid sisters over the suicide of their niece. "Do you think if she had come into a house where there was love, she would not have hesitated, thought twice, and talked to us?"

Oh Lord, help us to understand that your law of love says it all, and may we realize that love is so misunderstood in all walks of life because most of us are neither walking, jogging, nor running, but standing on the sidelines of life trying to hitch a free ride. Amen.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

A study of more than 6,000 retired union workers revealed that about 25 percent would have been happier if they kept working. An individual's financial situation and a positive attitude are the major requisites for satisfaction with retirement, the study found. "Be ready and be sure" should be the rule for those considering retirement, speakers told a symposium on the study at George Washington University in Washington, D.C.

When Alfred Puls was in his 20s he began traveling the Midwest from Dubuque, Iowa, selling merchandise to family-run drug stores. That was in the early 1900s and in those days customers would take the dapper young salesman home for dinner. Puls kept at it for 51 years, retiring at 74. He was 80 before he first went to a hospital as a patient, and 94 when he gave up driving a car. At age 106, he was still starting his days at 7:30 a.m. — white shirt and Windsor-knotted tie — ready to relate experiences, sometimes in rhyme, of "the best-loved salesman on the road," one who "really knows the territory."

News notes:

CV Road four-laning discussion set

THE IDEA of four-laning Carmel Valley Road from Via Petra to Robinson Canyon Road will be the subject of discussion from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday, Nov. 27, in the Community Room of the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Station.

The purpose of the gathering is to conduct a preliminary discussion on potential environmental aspects of the project. Public input is needed to facilitate the environmental analysis.

The project is to be funded from the one-half cent sales tax increase contained in Measure B, narrowly passed by voters in the Nov. 7 election.

A contract for the environmental analysis is in the process of negotiation and should be finalized before the end of the year.

The information garnered from next week's meeting will be passed on to the consultant.

Fire department will conduct food, toy drive

THE CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA Fire Department is conducting a drive to raise food and toys for needy families on the peninsula this Christmas. The drive will begin the day after Thanksgiving and will continue until Christmas Eve.

The fire department will be accepting donations in the form of canned and non-perishable foods, workable toys, money and any other appropriate gifts. Any and all contributions will be appreciated. Once collected, the donated items will be distributed by the Salvation Army.

Donations may be dropped off at the Carmel-by-the-Sea Fire Department on Sixth Street between San Carlos and Mission, daily from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m.

For further information, contact Mitch Kastros at the fire department, 624-1718.

Times, fire use changes made at Carmel River Beach

AS OF Nov. 1, fires on the north end of Carmel River State Beach, from the rocks at the mouth of the lagoon north around the point below Scenic Drive, will be restricted to fire rings.

Years of fires being built directly on the beach in this heavily used area known as Carmel River Lagoon and Stewart's Cove have resulted in unsightly and hazardous accumulations of charcoal, nails, and glass. This part of Carmel River State Beach is protected from the largest waves and thus doesn't get cleansed of the debris left from open fires. Fire rings are now provided. Visitors are welcome to bring their own barbecues as long as coals from personal barbecues are deposited in the fire rings provided.

The closing time of Carmel River State Beach has been changed from 11 p.m. to 10 p.m. The close proximity of the neighboring residential community along with the noise and commotion caused by people leaving the beach at closing time has made it necessary to close the beach at the earlier hour. Carmel River State Beach will now open at 7 a.m. and close at 10 p.m.

European master chefs assemble at Carmel Highlands

MASTER CHEFS and winemakers from Italy, France, Germany and the United States will be brought together on Feb. 27-March 4, 1990 for what has become an annual event at Highlands Inn and a premier West Coast culinary event — the Masters of Food and Wine.

Divergent as customs and countries may be, great food and wine is a common language transcending all international boundries. This year's event will feature lunches and dinners jointly planned by chefs and winemakers of individual countries. The grand finale dinner will be held on March 3.

During the week-long event, participants can enjoy diverse culinary programs to feature cooking classes taught by legendary chef, author and television personality Julia Child, Joyce Goldstein of San Francisco's celebrated Square One restaurant and Brian Whitmer of the hotel's acclaimed Pacific's Edge restaurant. Renowned wine authority Peter Sichel will be the host of the "World of Rieslings" program schedule for the afternoon of March 3, while outside the resort tours of a local mushroom farm and edible flower farm as well as a tour, tasting and lunch at Talbott Winery in Carmel Valley have been scheduled.

By popular demand, the Masters of Food and Wine program will again host a "Winter Beach Party Grill" on Sunday, March 4, when participants can mingle with the special guest chefs and winemakers in a casual setting.

Among the chefs participating in the fourth annual event are: Julia Child, chef and cookbook author; Joyce Goldstein, chef/owner of Square One in San Francisco; Joachim Splichal, chef/owner of Patina in Los Angeles; Jean Pierre Billoux, chef/owner of Restaurant Jean Pierre Billoux in Dijon, France; Maria Claude Grasia, chef/owner of La Belle Gasconne in Poudenas, France; Brian Whitmer, executive chef and Bruno Feldeisen, patissier of Pacific's Edge at Highlands Inn and Gerhard Michler, pastry chef in San Francisco.

Wine estates include; Jean-Claude Rouzaud of Champagne Roederer - France; Peter M.F. Sichel of H. Sichel Sohne, Inc. - Germany; Dan Duckhorn of Duckhorn Vineyards - Napa; Michael Grgich of Grgich Hills Cellar - Napa; Richard Graff of Chalone Vineyards - Soledad; Jacques Seyesse of Domaine Dujac - France.

Lufthansa German Airlines, which serves San Francisco International Airport, is once again co-sponsoring the event and will transport the international chefs, winemakers and cargo of specially selected wines to the United States. Lufthansa is celebrating its 30th anniversary of service between Germany and California throughout 1990. The airline serves an international network of 171 cities in 84 countries, including San Francisco and twelve other U.S. gateways.

All events during the Masters of Food and Wine are open to the public and individually priced from $40-$125. The Feb. 27 opening night gala reception will present the featured chefs and winemakers in a unique tasting of products from selected major California boutique farmers and the offerings of these celebrated wineries.

The fourth annual Master of Food and Wine is being coordinated by Dennis R. Mills, Highlands Inn vice president and general manager, Brian Whitmer, executive chef, and David Fink, food and beverage manager of the award-winning property.

Located just south of Carmel on Highway 1, the historic Highlands Inn is known for its spectacular coastal setting, luxurious accommodations, fine dining and personalized service. Highlands Inn is a member of Small Luxury Hotel and Resorts, a unique collection of finely appointed, individually owned hotels dedicated to maintaining exceptionally high standards of service.

Further information, reservations or a brochure on the Masters of Food and Wine may be obtained by telephoning Highlands Inn, 624-3801 ext. 251.

ARTS & LEISURE

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

Sarah

JOYOUS THANKSGIVING. With this issue, Jazz Tides heads into its third year. Am grateful for your interest — and your support of the music.

DURING SOME rare moments last summer, blues vocalist Sarah Levingston may well have been this planet's most radiant lady. Glowing. Full alive.

She just about made Monterey Bay Blues Festival her personal property via a set that was powerful, witty, swinging, partytime bold. I was lucky enough to get a hug when that transported person rode the crowd's roar offstage and into the wings. Sarah's face was encircled by light — and she repeated the triumph at Monterey Jazz Festival.

I'm deeply thankful that Miss Levingston had those extra-special experiences. She died at Oakland's Highland Hospital (11/11) as the result of head and neck injuries sustained in an auto smashup. There were so many phone calls while the coma held fast that nursing supervisors refused any more.

Sarah's vehicle was pulling out from the driveway of her home; she had a rehearsal. Police said the other car was stolen, its driver fleeing officers. A 20-year-old man was caught and today faces murder charges (among others).

Miss Levingston worked as a probation officer. She'd been pursuing her second career for just a few years. Tremendous talent and rapport with audiences. "Now I'd go on the road," she told me in June. "It's time."

The Blues Festival has a concert dance coming up Saturday night (11/25) at Seaside's Oldemeyer Center. Sarah had been booked into the job with Bobby Reed's excellent band. "We'll go ahead," Bobby said. "Faye Marshall — a dear friend of Sarah's — will be the vocalist."

My heart says the quite beautiful Sarah Levingston's in unsayably beautiful heaven. Let it be noted, then, that the celebrative event will include good food and door prizes. Tickets cost $14 per if you buy them there — or $12 advance. Contact points: 394-7600, 394-8304, 394-9523.

Services were held in Oakland's New Hope Baptist Church (11/16). The Omni Club this week hosted a benefit so that Sarah's daughter could continue college. Blues players and singers from all over the San Francisco Bay Area contributed love, abilities, prayers.

"After her set was over at Monterey Jazz Festival," said local photographer Will Wallace, "Sarah danced and laughed and had great hours with good friends. I'd never seen her happier."

ALL SYSTEMS GO. Carlos Santana and his famed band will play an outdoor earthquake relief concert Sunday (11/26). Place: Watsonville High School football field. Los Lobos, knockout group from East L.A., shares the bill.

Last week's column carried the concert bulletin provided by George Santana, brother of Carlos and executive at Santana Management in San Francisco. Producer Bill Graham then called a press conference (11/15). This report came through a telephone interview with Cynthia Bowman, spokeswoman for Bill Graham Presents.

That quake left hundreds of farmworkers homeless at the small (population 30,000) agricultural community. Full Watsonville talent roster: Santana, Los Lobos, comedian Jose Simon, Santa Cruz Steel, Square Roots Band, Watsonville High Marching Band. Start time — 11 o'clock Sunday morning.

Tickets carry a modest price — $5 apiece. BASS outlets offer advance treatment. You may purchase at the gate too. Watsonville folks living in temporary shelters were invited free of charge.

Proceeds will be shared by various mayoral quake relief funds (Santa Cruz included with of course Watsonville) and Red Cross efforts. Ms. Bowman put the football facility's seating capacity at 10,000.

"The whole thing was Bill's idea," she said. (He announced concurrent rock benefits in San Francisco and Oakland. Columnist Mac McDonald jumped all over these. I'm concentrating on Watsonville since Carlos and Los Lobos transcend categories — Santana recently completed a tour with brilliant jazz saxist Wayne Shorter and an album with blues master John Lee Hooker.)

Officials of KQED-TV and KQED-FM said the stations will broadcast the concerts from noon till midnight in a fund-raising telethon that could attract "several million dollars." Other outlets were invited to run the shows on a commercial-free basis; keep ears and eyes open for updated listings.

Also:

•Yes, there's strong entertainment Thanksgiving Night at Monterey Bay Club — vocalist Buddy Conner. He's on the well-received Centerpiece album of John Handy and Class (three young ladies who play violins and sing). Milestone label.

Joining regular weekly acts there: Spang-a-lang (11/24-25), quartet fronted by vibist Rob Lautz (11/29), the fine singer Madeline Eastman (11/30).

THEATER REVIEW

By James P. Kinney

Peter Shaffer's 'Black Comedy' staged at MPC

AN EARLY comedy by one of the most respected English-writing playwrights of our time is currently being performed at the SRO theater at MPC.

Black Comedy, a long one-act play, is not enough theater for an evening's entertainment — playing time is about 1:15 — but the current production is entertaining enough and seeing it does give some good insight into the developing skills that would later blossom in Peter Shaffer's full-length works, Royal Hunt of the Sun, Equus, and Amadeus.

The same keen observation of character, clever dialogue and physical humor which were on display in an SRO production of two other short Shaffer plays a few years ago — The Private Ear and The Public Eye, directed by Joan Swartz — are present in the present play as well.

Black Comedy hinges on a clever conceit. The audience is asked to believe that when the stage is black, the onstage characters are in full light and that when they are fully visible to the audience, they must grope about the set in total darkness.

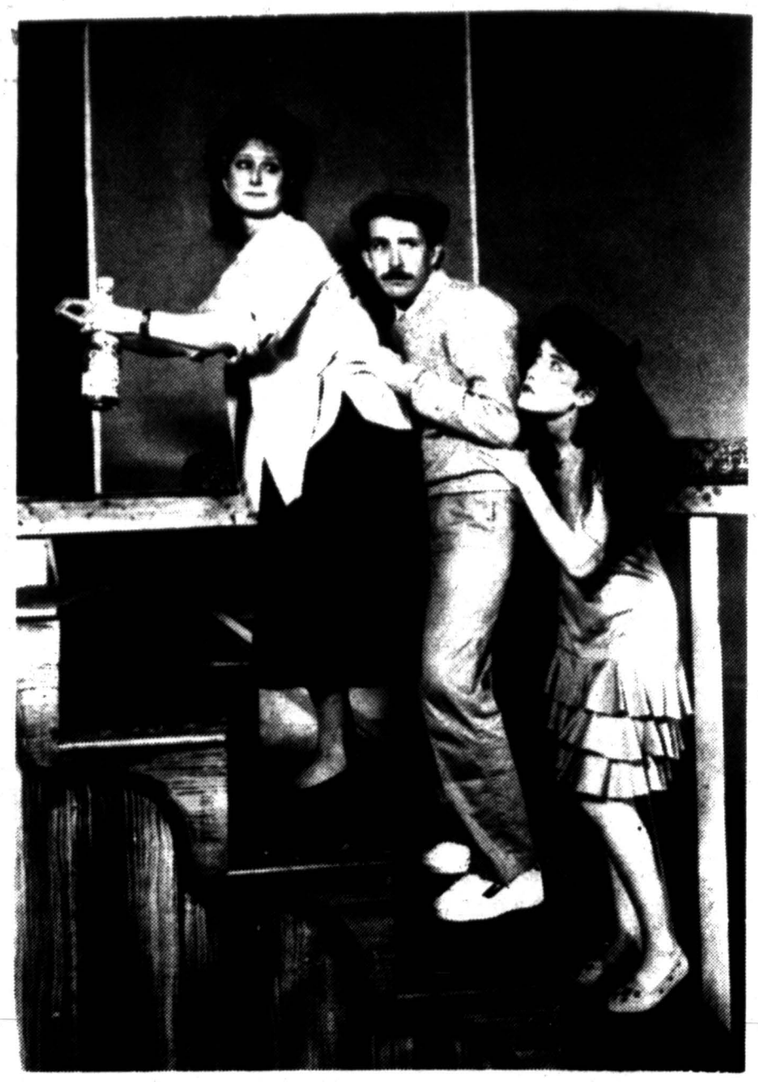
The conceit works. A fuse blows early in the action, throwing the cast into darkness and into full view of the audience.

We find ourselves in the tacky apartment of Brindsley Miller (Pat Stadille), a young sculptor, who has been persuaded by his fiance, Carol Melkett (Ivy Cates), to finally meet his future father-in-law, a stuffy British colonel (played by Jack Whittaker). It happens to be on the same night that Miller is expecting an important visit from a wealthy German art collector he has been courting. To make a good impression on both visitors, the artist unilaterally "borrows" the expensive furniture of a neighbor, Harold Gorringe (Michael Weiss), while that neighbor is out of town.

Unfortunately for the hapless Mr. Miller, four other guests show up as well: an eccentric spinster, Miss Furnival (Ellen S. Kester); Miller's lusty ex-girlfriend, Clea (Denise Clifford); a repairman from the electric company, Mr. Schuppanzigh (Ron Nelson), whom Miller mistakes for his wealthy art patron; and finally the neighbor whose furniture he has purloined.

Obviously, there is a wealth of material here for the farcical action that ensues — pratfalls aplenty, intimate, for-your-ears-only conversations directed at the wrong persons, and people being grabbed in off-limits places by grabbers who have not obtained the necessary permits.

It is important for me to say from the start that I think this is the kind of experimental, workshop theater for which the SRO was created. This is not a polished production and there are no polished performances. But there are lots of interesting and promising things happening on the small SRO stage. We are watching actors developing their performing skills and that in itself is an intriguing and exciting process to watch.



DENISE CLIFFORD gets a push up the stairs by Pat Stadille, as Ivy Cates, unable to see in the dark dwelling, wonders what is causing the holdup on the stairs. Complications arise when the lights go out in Black Comedy, Peter Shaffer's farce playing at the SRO Theater at Monterey Peninsula College.

Director Carol Bettes has her players moving energetically about the stage. But the physical comedy too often overshadows the verbal humor inherent in Shaffer's script, a flaw I have noted is often present when American actors play British farce.

We Americans tend to be much more literal than literate in our approach to comedy. Directors, then, need to be aware of this congenital Yankee flaw and spend more rehearsal time with their players mining the humor in a script's well-turned lines. The British, after all, grow up playing and enjoying soccer, a sport which turns on subtle movements. We Americans, on the other hand, cut our teeth on football, a game hardly noted for its subtlety.

My second criticism about the performing here is that what was shown onstage did not usually reflect knowledge of a rounded life of the character offstage. Some directors require their players to write out a fullblown biography of their character reflecting that character's roots, early years, and how he/she behaves while taking a shower, waiting in line for a ticket or shopping for groceries. I found this familiarity with character generally deficient in this production, realizing in the same breath that such a quality is infinitely perfectible.

It is that perfectibility, of course, that makes performing such an exciting activity. Unlike operating a computer, waiting on tables or clerking in a store — those tasks the capitalists assure us are such great fun as they play golf on time bought by our boring labors at low pay in their employ — performing remains eternally exciting in its limitless potential.

Black Comedy completes its short run with 8 p.m. shows on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 24 and 25, and Sunday, Nov. 26 at 7 p.m. Call Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561, to reserve tickets.

20th century works dominate symphony program

THAT THE Monterey County Symphony has gotten over its post-earthquake jitters was very apparent Sunday afternoon during the opening performance of the mainly 20th century program of their second set of concerts. Playing in the open, reverberating reaches of King Hall at the Naval Postgraduate School, the opulent sounds of the contemporary, theatrically conceived compositions were excitingly conveyed by the much augmented orchestra.

The overture to The Wasps by Ralph Vaughan Williams contained explicit insect imitations which were very confidently created. The vivid, colorful orchestration makes fine use of tonal colors and the large orchestra romped through them with assurance and verve. The playing was clean and cohesive and conductor Clark Suttle kept fine control of what ultimately comes off as an English countrified version of The Sorcer's Apprentice.

As a striking musical contrast, the Mozart Violin Concerto in A Major, K. 219 was performed with violinist Diane Nicholeris as soloist, with a scaled-down chamber-sized orchestra. Miss Nicholeris, who is the very competent Concertmaster of the orchestra, is also a highly proficient performing artist. She has well-developed musical sensibilities, with the ability to choose graceful and elegant tempos, which, however did not completely correspond with those of the conductor. She shaped her phrases, allowing them to breathe and be expressive of the joy in the music, with much finesse.

This was true in the Adagio as well. After the orchestral opening, she asserted her own, very well chosen idea of how to pace the music with grace and refinement. Her awareness of what she wishes to state is finely honed. The Minuet with its "Turkish" interlude was spirited and colorful. Clark Suttle needs to lighten up on his tempo choices which tend to be hurried and the orchestra needs to be lighter and more refined in their accompaniment passages. But, this too is up to Suttle.

It is much easier to play loudly and with spirit in more modern music and this fact was quickly noticeable in the full-blown rumble and thunder of the Prokofiev Symphony No. 5 in B Flat Major, Op. 100. Playing like true fire-eating professionals, the orchestra (which was almost double its usual complement) gave a performance of monumental sonority and virtuosity. The symphony is a stringent test of both endurance and technical expertise. All the participants passed it with flying colors.

The four massive movements with their dar er string colorations and well exploited wind and brass sages, are full of drama and strong rhythmic and dynamic ntrasts. The reading captured these characteristics in large, b road strokes. There was intensity and seriousness pervading the playing. The pointed concentration of all concerned made for a very convincing performance and at the conclusion, there was an audible sigh of admiration from the audience before the applause broke out.

Thibaudet shines in Brahms compositions

THE YOUTHFUL French pianist Jean-Yves Thibaudet was warmly received by a large audience at his recital last Thursday night in Sunset Theater. Playing under the auspices of the Carmel Music Society, he chose an unusual, daunting and technically brilliant program of Romantic and Impressionist music. Oddly enough for a musician of his native background, which would lead one to expect a particular sensitivity to music imbued with a Gallic spirit, the second half of the program which was devoted to compositions by Brahms was the high point of the evening.

Thibaudet's choice of both books of the Brahms Variations on a Theme by Paganini op. 35 and then to split them by playing the Klavierstucke op. 119 in between, was certainly novel and while one can speculate about why he chose to do so, that is what we got. Based on the theme of the 24th Caprice, the music is marked "Studies for Pianoforte" and it is heaped with technical difficulties of fearsome proportions, a true essay in virtuosity.

All of Brahms' skill in creating pianistically terrifying passages; the runs in thirds, sixths and octaves; passages with both hands diverging widely in rhythmically contrary motion; glissandi and tremendous stretches and most of it at very rapid tempos, are all brought into play to test the pianist's capabilities. Thibaudet was an adroit performer through it all. The execution was polished, accomplished, brilliant and full of mastery. Whatever expressive material was available in the music was beautifully brought out, in fine contrast to all the thunder of the technical passagework.

The Klavierstucke are all gems of musical creativity and were Brahms' last compositions for solo piano. The Intermezzo no. 1 in B Minor was played with a gently singing tone and the carefully balanced thematic thread was well delineated. The Intermezzo no. 2 in E Minor was delicately agitated. A waltz-like central section was rhythmically beguiling and the fine-lined unity of the interpretation made it memorable. The Intermezzo no. 3 in C Major sparkled and scampered brightly. This is a justly popular work. The Rhapsody in E Flat Major which concludes op. 119 is a miniaturization of a major work, but only in its scale of composition. Musically it has grandeur and dignity and the artist's performance was all that could be desired.

Music by Ravel made up the first half of the program. Two "Minuets" written in the manner of Borodin and Chabrier had interest but the playing was percussive. They served as a warm-up for the pianistic fireworks of Gaspardde la Nuit which is a suite of three descriptive pieces. The highest virtuosity and tonal sensitivity are required to realize this music. Thibaudet was well able to traverse the problems and express the dramatic aspects, especially in Le Gibet with its ostinato tolling bell tones and dolorous mood. But the opening section Ondine suffered from a heavy touch and a lack of the fluidity befitting a water nymph. Scarbo too was overly weighted for all its scintillating pianism. There was much thunder as it came to a grandiose climax.

The thunder and excitement of two Chopin etudes played as encores was more appropriately placed. These were the so-called Wintery Winds Etude op. 25, no. 11 and the familiar Revolutionary Etude," op. 10, no. 12.

ART NOTES

By Sam Colburn

Throwing off the shackles

IT IS INTERESTING to think about the direction of Art. Which way is it headed and why? This is hard to tell from going to the galleries around here. We see a kind of mish mash of trends. Perhaps in the great centers like New York, Paris, or Los Angeles new approaches are evident. The death of the Academy was a liberation and one might say that Art is like the man who came out, jumped on his horse, and rode off in all directions.

This throwing off of the shackles of conservatism has given us Impressionism, Expressionism, Surrealism, Dadism, and Neo Conservative. Mingled in and often a part of these movements, has been the Abstract and the Non Objective. The dead end of all this has been, at least for me, Conceptual Art. This is a marvelous movement that only required that the artist think about a creation and describe it in writing. My memory may be faulty, but I think I recall going to a show in which the concepts were set down in papers which were hung on the gallery walls. Art is something you can, above all, see.

OVER AT the Pacific Grove Art Center there is a showing of the work of Carolyn Berry which is entitled, "Books, Watercolors and Collage." This exhibit certainly establishes her as expressive in more than one media. She has a mind that "sees" in many ways, and is not related to any particular school. She occasionally uses an opaque white in her watercolors in which the subject matter is greatly varied. Black is a favorite with her that gives her paintings a dramatic structure, and also enables a great range in tone. In some the color really sparkles as in Boudicea-1989, Anticipating New Mexico, and The Couple with Curtain. Ideas come to her from many sources, because she has the sort of mind that flits from one idea to another. Self Portrait has a sharp graphic impact. Her collage is based on poems by Anna Akhmatova. There is a strong feeling of Russia. It is rather like Carolyn Berry is serving as an interpreter. Her books are delightful. She takes almost any small volume, and pastes on the pages pieces of maps. photographs, newspaper clippings, or almost anything that will lie down flat. All in all I think that she has a random, whimsical eye which enables her to express herself in a variety of media.

Also showing at the Pacific Grove Art Center is Carol Star Safer. She invites you to get away from Earth with her "Outer Space Paintings." The large works are illustrative of the moon's surface and might be considered as science fiction art. The small paintings in rosin are much more exciting to the eye. The "red" spot on Jupiter is fascinating.

JOHN LA PIERRE has a strong exhibit of collage at the Carmel Art Association. He develops the picture area with pieces of paper which are painted a great variety of colors. He uses newspaper very effectively for this. The subject matter is various harbors around the world, and the enjoining landscape is an excellent foil. Red Cottage Sausalito develops form through a strong sense of values with a brilliant scarlet to unify the composition. Reflections at Dockside captures the shadows cast on water. The graphic impact is vital. Only a very mature artist can develop wuch pictorial reality. Georgia Shrimp Boats has a depth achieved by the use of warm color against the cool water. John La Pierre has a mastery of the medium.

THE CARMEL Gallery of Modern Art, at Fifth Avenue and Dolores Street, is new, and is showing the work of a group of artists with diverse imagery. Nic Jonk is Dutch and exhibits very loose oils of nudes. He is also a sculptor. His forms are very full and round.

Chung-Ray Fong was trained in the ancient Chinese discipline of painting on paper although pieces shown are acrylic on canvas, and show great respect for the picture plane. Monoprint is a difficult medium. Betty Peckinpah's prints have graphic enovation, and, I believe an Oriental influence. In his watercolors which he submitted my old friend, Rollin Pickford, attains a poetic imagery which is dreamy.

Working with different materials Helen Wilson creates tapestries which almost look as if they had been painted. A very striking sculpture by Andrew Stoia is Dali's Last Dream, done in polished bronze. I was delighted to see the strong oils of George De Groat. This gallery of modern art is a fine venture into the crowded field of contemporary drawing, painting and sculpture.

EACH YEAR the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History has a competitive exhibition of work in any aqueous media. Many years ago watercolor was something that you did for 10 years before painting in oil. Each year various organizations and businesses make this show possible. There are a number of awards, some in honor of three ladies who over the years consistently supported museum activities and whose bequests are a continuing help.

The judge this year was George Post who has devoted a life to watercolor. Jeanner Bellmer was awarded Best of Show. Her Sunflowers No. 2 is strong with a subtle underglaze. Most of the watercolors in this show follow traditional techniques. I thought Lucia Manley's Autumn Pallete was distinctive because of her use of color.

In The Rain Watchers Miguel Dominguez achieves a beautiful sky because he allowed the pigment to flow. Capitola was painted by T. Bright Sunlavey. The knarled tree is handled with feeling. I don't know what the title had to do with the picture. Ronald E. Bean is somewhat stylized in his Deserted, but the composition is crisp and clean. This show will be on the walls through Nov. 22.

It has been heartening to see galleries established that are interested in original imagery, and avoiding the potboiler trap. Toward that goal are Gallery Seven in Pacific Grove, the Christopher Grimes Gallery in Carmel, and the new Carmel Gallery of Modern Art.

Spiritual transformations discussed by Friends of Jung

THE NEXT "step" in the program of discussions about how to make the Twelve Steps of Alcoholics Anonymous more effective will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 28, 7 p.m. at All Saints' Church, Ninth and Dolores, Carmel.

Sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung, the exploration of possible new recovery routes for alcoholics (and for others — food, gambling, dependency "anonymous" groups which use the Twelve Steps), is rooted in the fact that Jung originally suggested the need for a spiritual transformation to overcome alcoholism. This basic need all too often gets buried in verbiage and "traditions."

Participants at this workshop will learn how Jung's ideas can help make the interpretations and applications of the Twelve Steps more effective in their everyday lives.

A second event sponsored by the same group, on Friday, Dec. 1, 7 p.m. at the same location, is a review, discussion and experiential activity based on the book titled The Cassandra Complex — Living With Disbelief, A Modern Perspective on Hysteria.

Cassandra was both blessed and cursed by Apollo: through his gift of prophecy, she could foretell the future; enraged by her rejection of him, Apollo spoiled his gift: no one would ever believe her! The book suggests that modern Cassandras need not suffer the same fate, but learn how the burden of unconscious sensibilities "can become the creative wellspring of a proud new Cassandra."

Discussion leaders for this workshop will be Ann Fagen, M.A. of Pacific Grove and Joseph Pagano, M.A. of Monterey.

The Friends of C.G. Jung is an informal collection of people who are sharing an enthusiasm for the writings of the famous Swiss physician. For more information: 649-8809; 899 Drake Ave., Monterey.

Restrict fires to fire rings at Carmel River State Beach

FIRES ON the north end of Carmel River State Beach, from the rocks at the mouth of the lagoon north around the point below Scenic Drive, are now restricted to fire rings. Years of fires being built directly on the beach in this heavily used area known as Carmel River Lagoon and Stewart's Cove have resulted in unsightly and hazardous accumulations of charcoal, nails and glass.

This part of Carmel River State Beach is protected from the largest of waves and thus doesn't get cleansed of the debris left from open fires. Fire rings are now provided. Visitors are welcome to bring their own barbecues as long as coals from personal barbecues are deposited in the fire rings provided.

The closing time of Carmel River State Beach has been changed from 11 p.m. to 10 p.m. The close proximity of the neighboring residential community along with the noise and commotion caused by people leaving the beach at closing time has made it necessary to close the beach at the earlier hour. Carmel River State Beach will now open at 7 a.m. and close at 10 p.m.

Carmel River State Beach provides beach footage for recreation activities plus an opportunity for observing waterfowl in the Carmel River Lagoon and Wetlands Natural Preserve. Rough surf, unpredictable wave action, and the steepness of the beach are constraints on any activity occurring at the water's edge: caution should always be used.

THE LATE Cressie Roach, master drummer Max's mother, deserves thanks for musical wonders that happened at Kuumbwa.

When Max's daughter was a junior at Oberlin, he said between two packed shows, it was Cressie Roach who asked when Max would record with his viola-playing offspring.

He thought and thought. Eventual result: The Double Quartet (Max's working unit plus Uptown String Quartet); debut time came a decade ago during the old Newport Jazz Festival. "The seed was planted because Maxine's grandmother posed that question," recalled the man whose brushes kiss cymbals the way inspired pointillist painters worked canvas.

Those eight players brought fresh hope to non-profit Kuumbwa, which suffered too many empty seats following the killer quake. They fused seamlessly: Max the unifying conductor, Cecil Bridgewater (trumpet), tenorist Odean Pope, Tyrone Brown (upright electric bass), Maxine Roach, violinists Kathleen Thomas and Lesa Terry (Clark Terry's niece), cellist Eileen Folson. Kathleen subbed for Diane Monroe, rehearsing right then with Brooklyn Philharmonic. Thus far the whole gang has cut two albums on Soul Note — Easy Winners and Bright Moments.

Artistic levels amazed. Cecil's solos evoked classic Fats Navarro sides while his original compositions fairly burst with true jazz spirit (Pope's too — especially the ballad entitled Sis). Brown's a major force, giving his mates a rich and rock-solid groove.

Uptown members showed very quickly that this Double Quartet was much more than a nice notion. Lesa's solos burned (urgent beauty). Miss Folson handled herself like an old pro, out there on the edge.

By itself, the string group offered a heart-punching traditional spiritual. ("If our country has an early music," Max said, "this sorrow music is it.") That arrangement came from pianist Bill Lee, father of filmmaker Spike.

Max looked fit as any fiddle. Even Kuumbwa's courtyard was filled with folks listening through the glass front doors. This music heals. And Cressie Roach must've been smiling.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: ELLA HAMLIN JOHNSON

Case number: P 29404

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of: Ella Hamlin Johnson.

A PETITION has been filed by: Meri Maben in the Superior Court of California, County of: Monterey.

THE PETITION requests that Meri Maben and Merwin Lewis be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's WILL and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 9100 of the California Probate Code. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a formal Request for Special Notice of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in section 1250 of the California Probate Code. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

ROUNDUP

Give extra bags to Goodwill

Goodwill Industries is putting out a call for paper and plastic bags for use in their stores in Monterey and Santa Cruz counties. Grocery bags will be received at Goodwill stores and Attended Donation Stations throughout the area.

Bring own water to Molera Park

Drinking or potable water is no longer available in the Andrew Molera State Park, located on the Big Sur Coast.

In the past, potable water was provided by "water buffaloes." The old military metal water tanks on wheels no longer meet state health standards for drinking water and have been removed from the park.

Campers and day users should plan on bringing their own drinking water. Drinking water is available at Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park and Julia Pfeiffer Burns State Park.

For further information, contact the Big Sur District Office at 667-2315.

Park for free in Monterey

The City of Monterey has removed the one-hour parking meters from the first floor of the West Custom House Garage located at Tyler and Del Monte streets downtown. The first floor has been converted to a free one-hour maximum time limit, with the exception of two 24-minute and one handicapped space.

Use toll-free line for park reservations

There is a toll-free telephone number for making reservations at California State Parks through the MISTIX reservation system — 1-800-444-7275.

Reservations from out-of-state callers will still be made through the toll number of 1-619-452-1950.

The toll-free number is not only for state park camping reservations, but also for Hearst Castle tours.

Art council accepts grant applications

The California Arts Council was formed in 1976 to promote artistic awareness and participation in California.

Grantees may apply in one of the following disciplines: dance, interdisciplinary, literature, media, multi-disciplinary arts, music, theater, visual arts and arts service and presenting organizations.

Deadline for the 1990-91 Organizational Support Program is Feb. 1, 1990. For an application or information on this or other arts council programs contact the California Arts Council, 1901 Broadway, Suite A, Sacramento, CA 95818; (415) 445-1530.

Open Studio Tour applications

Applications are now available for the Second Annual Artists Equity Open Studio Tour. Deadline is Nov. 30.

Participants need not be a "professional" artist to participate.

For application, send name and address to Box HG, Pacific Grove, 93950, or call 625-0140. Acceptance will be on a first-come, first-served basis.

Artists join in all-day draw

The Pacific Grove Art Center, 568 Lighthouse Ave. in Pacific Grove, provides the setting for all-day art draws the first Saturday of each month.

Artists in all media and skill levels are invited to work at the center for all or part of the day. They will share the cost of professional art models and work independently at easels and tables provided by the center. There is a potluck lunch for those who wish to participate.

The fee is $16 for the day or $9 for half a day, with draw hours set 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. the first Saturday of each month.

For details, call 649-4657 or 375-2208.

Camp hosts sought for Big Sur coast

State parks along the scenic Big Sur coast have several openings for volunteer camp hosts — either couples or individuals.

Camp host duties range from greeting visitors and working in a visitor center to collecting fees, maintenance and other duties involved in operating a campground. Camp hosts must supply their own camping vehicles. Campsites are provided, with hookups for water and electricity. Each camp host must agree to work 20 hours a week and stay at least two months.

When it comes to toys, collectibles, Gepetto's is the place

Gepetto's Collectibles and Gepetto's Workshop, serving peninsula residents at two separate locations, are the greatest thing since, well, Christmas.

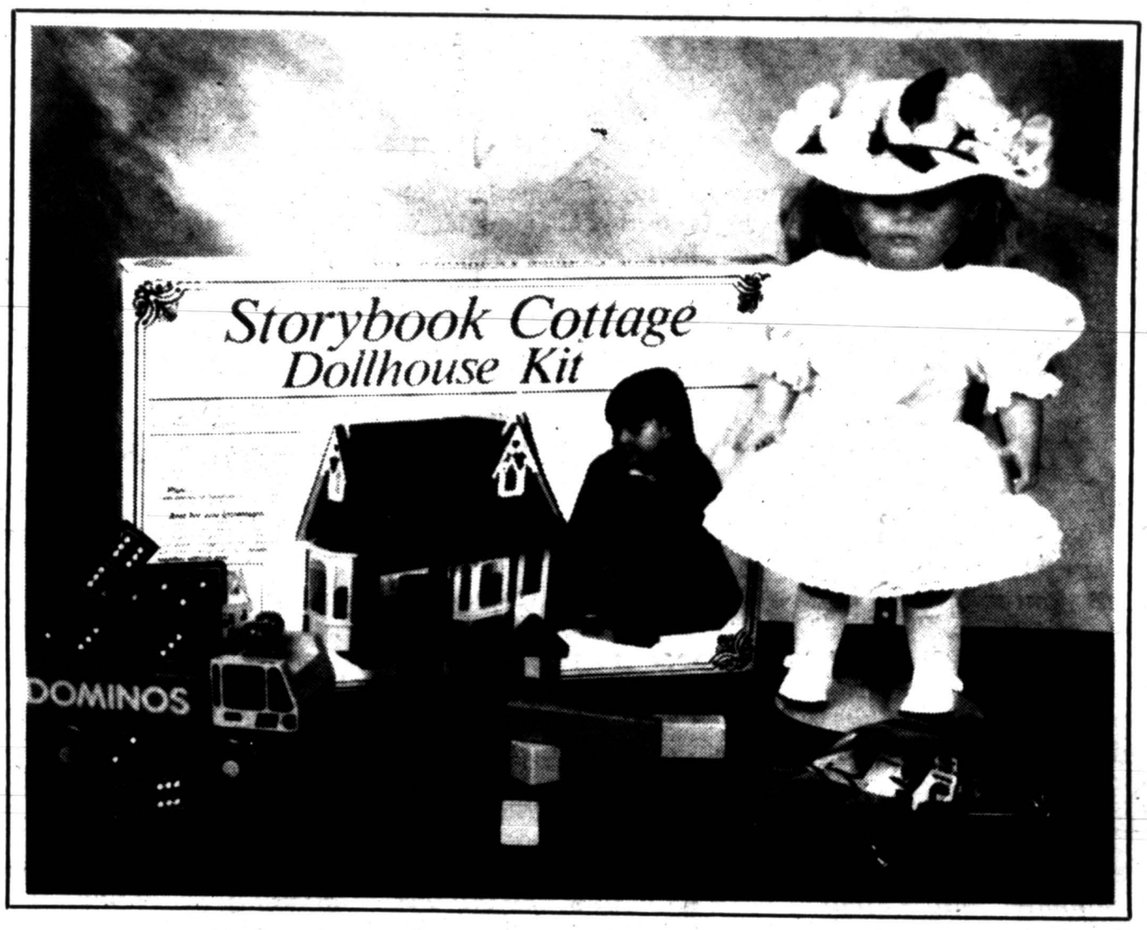
Gepetto's Collectibles, located in The Crossroads, is filled with beautiful and enchanting collectibles and gifts for adults.

One glance and you'll fall in love with Gepetto's antique reproduction porcelain dolls — handmade in the Old World tradition, with each doll intricately detailed, costumed, numbered and signed by the artist — miniature cottages, handmade teddy bears, carousel horses and paperweights.

Gepetto's Workshop, located in downtown Carmel on Dolores Street south of Ocean Avenue, is geared to children from infant to adulthood.

In addition to a large supply of educational toys to stimulate your child's mind, Gepetto's Workshop carries miniature doll house furniture, plush stuffed animals, collectors' cars, imported and handcrafted wood toys and dolls. Stop by for a look at the unusual.

Gepetto's Collectible's and Gepetto's Workshop are open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.



GEPETTO'S COLLECTIBLES and Gepetto's Workshop are both filled with beautiful and enchanting toys, gifts and collectibles, the former for adults and the latter for kids from toddler to young adult.

ANDRE BAYLON, a native of Holland, showcases his highly acclaimed works, both etchings and oil paintings, at his intimate Dolores Street gallery in Carmel.

Baylon Gallery reflects mood of artist's native country

Dutch-born artist Andre Baylon has chosen Carmel as a showcase for his highly acclaimed works, featured in both oil and etchings.

The intimate gallery offers a dazzling array of Baylon's oil paintings, both those created by himself and those in which he collaberated with Hans Van Moerkerken.

The duo often practices the century old tradition of parfaire, where two artists complete the same work.

Those creations, as well as Baylon's solo efforts, are also featured in limited edition prints, with each edition signed and numbered.

Now a California resident, Baylon's is also noted for his etchings, which now hang in the private art collections of H.R.H. Prince Bernhard, Prime Minister Rudd Lubbers and Vice President George Bush.

Baylon still visits his native Holland once a year to refresh his memory on the prominence of the Dutch landscape, which can be seen in most of his paintings.

Baylon Gallery is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily and is located on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth. Phone 624-4355.

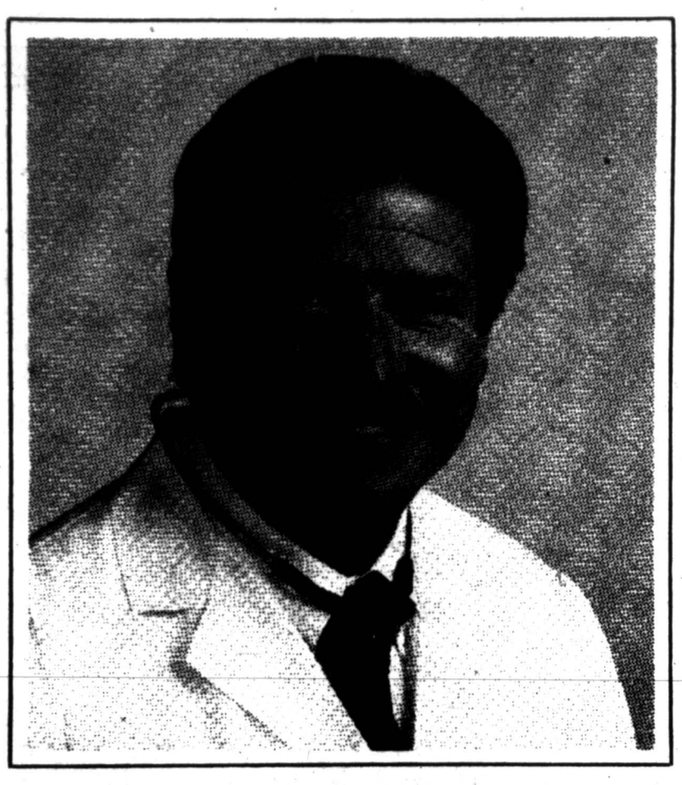
Trimming down is now easier at Pacific Trim & Tone



DR. FRANK Toppo has come up with the most effective diet aid on the market today: ToppFast, now available at Pacific Trim & Tone in Pacific Grove.

Finally there's a peninsula location where you can get ToppFast — Pacific Trim & Tone.

ToppFast is the most effective protein-sparing modified fasting product on the market today. It can be your answer to permanent weight control.

So, you've tried everything? Fads, diets, shots, pills, grapefruit, hypnosis — but you can't get that extra weight off? One famous talk show hostess tried everything too, but she's only been successful with one diet plan.

The ToppFast diet plan is the brainchild of Dr. Frank R. Toppo, a board-certified Bariatrics specialist.

The plan is based on research findings that show overweight people can reach their goal weight quickly and safely by fasting — when it's supplemented with a protein-sparing powder.

The ToppFast system is an example of "modified" fasting. Its nutritionally balanced formula gives dieters a minimum of 600 calores per day.

Pacific Trim & Tone will give you a free diet consultation by an authorized representative. Phone 372-5095.

The key to Pendleton's look is 100 percent virgin wool

Have you ever wondered why Pendleton's myriad of colors are so much brighter than other products?

Well the answer is that Pendleton uses only the highest quality 100 percent pure virgin wool which accepts brigher dyes better than any other fabric. This winter is no different — with a spectacular array of colors in both men's and women's wear.

The women's line features blouses, skirts, pants, coats, sweaters and accessories — all in the traditional tartan colors as well as jewel green, heather green, violet mist and garnet.

Carmel Pendleton has a wonderful selection of all the Pendleton shirts for men, plus sportcoats, slacks, sweaters, coats and accessories.

The hot item this season is the aidrian blanket jacket that is made exclusively for Carmel Pendleton. The jackets are both long and short and made from virbrant Pendleton colors.

Accessories include bedspreads, rugs, luggage, teddy bears, stadium blankets, hats and mufflers.

Carmel Pendleton is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday. The store is located at Sixth Avenue and San Carlos Street. Phone 625-9505.

THE VIBRANCY of the colors in Pendleton's hottest item this year — the aidrian blanket jacket — dazzles the eyes and brightens the spirit. The key is Pendleton's use of 100 percent pure virgin wool.

Creative deception specialty of artist Peik van Waveren

Seeing is believing at Specialized Painting, where Carmel Valley artist Peik van Waveren "deceptive" work is created.

Van Waveren works in a wide variety of faux finishes, color matching, gliding, mural, trompe l'oeil and wood graining.

"When I paint something everybody always says, 'Are you sure that's paint? It can't be,' " says van Waveren of his marble and wood grain finishes.

In less than a year, van Waveren has become one of the most sought-after artists on the peninsula for home fashion designs.

Originally van Waveren constructed pieces of furniture, but he wanted to embellish that work, so he studied his craft with noted artists Joanne Day, Leonard Pardon and Isabel O'Neil.

He's proud ofhis work, with his kitchen table having 42 faux inlays of marble and precious stones for visitors to ogle.

Eventually, he says he will open his home as a showplace to display his talents. In the meantime, van Waveren can be reached at 659-3831.

CARMEL VALLEY artist Peik van Waveren specializes in unusual painting technique he terms "deceptive," such as this faux marble floor he created for a client.

Heirlooms

This season we bring you a collection of rich tapestries, elegant brocades, and romantic laces.

With the added talents of Marie Perkins, formerly of Carmel's "Barnyard Florist," we've created charming wreaths and garlands filled with old-fashioned garden roses and Hydrangeas intertwined with French ribbons.

Our pine armoires are brimming with scented pomanders and potpourri, floral topiaries and sweet nosegays for your tree.

We have vests made of fine vintage fabrics and finished with antique buttons, designed exclusively for Heirlooms, by Penny Cruz.

For the youngest ladies, we've filled an armoire with velvet dresses trimmed with lavish lace collars.

We are looking forward to sharing our Christmas season with you and would like to take this opportunity to wish you and your family a Happy and Healthy New Year.

Sincerely,
Indrani and Elisa

STANLEY M. BRICE'S "Day Break" is just one of the many paintings of the California artist that will be exhibited at Simic Galleries in Carmel, opening with a champagne reception, 5-9 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 9.

Stanley M. Brice exhibit opens at Simic Galleries

Simic Galleries in Carmel brings in the holiday season with a champagne reception celebrating the opening of one-man show by Stanley M. Brice from 5 to 9 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 9.

The galleries, with three locations, are located at San Carlos and Sixth in downtown Carmel.

Brice brings to the art world compositions that are unique in color, technique, style and detail.

A still-life artist, Brice goes beyond painting beautiful florals, vases and linens. He stands on a fine line between ultra-realism in composition and surrealism in color and design.

Born in San Francisco, Brice has worked with renowned artist Roberto Lupetti during his early years and continues to maintain a close relationship. Brice's style has been likened to "trompe l'oeil," which means "as if to fool the eye, more real than real."

Brice is represented exclusively by Simic Galleries, for which he has painted dedications to fellow artists Eugene Garin, James Fetherolf, William Slaughter, Alexander Dzigurski and Paul Valere.

For more information about the show or about the galleries and the artists they represent, call 624-7522.
